PHYSICS DEPARTMENT

THE BLACKBURNS IN AMERICA

The name of Blackburn is of very ancient origin. As early in English History as the time of Ethelbert, King of England, A.D. 596, reference is made to Blagborneshire in the following quotation: "In those times while the said churches had thus been built, there was not, in Blagborneshire, at Cliderhowe, or elsewhere, a castle built, nor any chapel, whatever beside the above named churches, nor any lord who had ever claimed the patronage of the said churches, etc." The name appears under many spellings: Blagborne, Blakeburn, Blackborne, Blackburn. It would seem to be of English or Scottish origin and mean "black brook", or "black river". However, the first person of whom we can find authentic record was a knight who doubtless came over with William the Conqueror in 1066 and helped conquer Saxon England and received for his services "The Blackburn Manor" in Lancaster Shire in northwestern England together with some 1800 acres of fertile land thereto adjacent. He bore the name of Gamaliel de Blackburn. If he was Norman, as the "de" seems to indicate, the writer is inclined to think that he adopted the name of Blackburn from the rich estate he so unceremoniously inherited. Be that as it may, it is certain that the name of Blagborne was given to the site of the present City of Blackburn long before the Norman Conquest, and that the Blackburns moved out from this center eastward into York Shire and northward into Scotland and southward toward London. When James Stuart came to the throne of England, he found North Ireland depleted of inhabitants by civil wars. He offered to his Scotch lowland subjects the opportunity to secure tracts of 1000 to 2000 acres, on the condition that they would build a castle or substantial manor within four years and keep on each one thousand acres at least twenty-four men who were capable of bearing arms. These Scotch emigrants to Ireland (Blackburns among them) were the ancestors of the Scotch-Irish emigrants, some 34,000 of whom came to America between 1730 and 1760. They came bringing with them the Solemn League and Covenant, the Westminster Confession of Faith and the Presbyterian Church Organization. Rebuffed by the unfortunate Stuarts, harshly treated by their English rulers, they came with their hearts filled with hatred against their English kinsmen. When the war of the Revolution broke out, the American cause found no more ardent supporters than it found among these Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. The historian Bancroft says that the Revolution was fought by the Presbyterians. George Washington is reported to have said that if he were deserted by all others "he would retreat to the back-country and rally the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians around him and fight to the bitter end." Among these Scotch-Irish emigrants who came to America in the early part of the 18th century, were many families of the Blackburns.

Many references may be found to the Blackburns. We read that in 1397 Christopherus de Blackburn was "an extensive Russian merchant"; in the time of Queen Elizabeth a branch of the family emigrated from Lancaster to County Meath, North Ireland; a Rt. Hon. Francis Blackburn appears as Lord High Chancellor of Ireland; in 1406 a Nicholas Blackburn was Lord High Admiral in the British Navy, and tradition says that he was shipwrecked on the coast of Scotland, where he met and later returned to wed a princess of the Stuarts. Peter Blackburn was rector of St. Nicholas Church, Aberdeen, in 1603. Six generations of "Francis Blackburns" all men of note, appear in York from 1650 to 1850. Lancelot Blackburn was Archbishop of York in 1724. Thomas Blackburn was warden of Christ's College, Manchester, 1798. John Blackburn was King's Counsel in 1833 and William Blackburn was made a General in 1854, and others of lesser note are to be found in the records. Therefore it is ^{not} surprising that any effort to link up the various families of Blackburn in America would end in failure.

GIDEON BLACKBURN OF BLACKBURN COLLEGE

The writer of this sketch has been to some effort to trace the ancestry of the Reverend Gideon Blackburn, founder of Blackburn College at Carlinville, Ill. He has written to many who bear the name of Blackburn in hopes that the lost links of descent might be found. He would be quite content if he could learn the birth-place of Benjamin Blackburn, the grandfather of the said Dr. Gideon Blackburn, and whether this grandfather or his father first came to America and from what land they emigrated. This information is doubtless available if one knew where to look. It seems wise to the writer, even at the risk of becoming tedious, to record in some logical order the facts and traditions of which he has become informed in order that the path may be easier for someone else to follow and that some of these traditions regarding Dr. Blackburn and his ancestry that have come down to him by word of mouth may find a permanent place on the written page ere they become forgotten. Before entering upon a detailed genealogy of the Benjamin Blackburn line (grandfather of Dr. Gideon Blackburn) we will first speak of several Blackburn lines who are now living in America and who may or may not be closely related to Dr. Blackburn's family.

BLACKBURNS OF RIPPON LODGE

Colonel Richard Blackburn was born in 1706 at Rippon Hall, Yorkshire, England; educated at Balliol College, Scotland, and emigrated to America as a youth to inherit--so it is said--a fortune left to him by an aunt in the Virginia Colony. He settled at Dumfries, Virginia, and gave to his home-seat the name, Rippon Lodge. He married Mrs. Ashton, widow of Col. Henry Ashton. Her maiden name was Mary Watts, daughter of Richard Watts, of the celebrated Isaac Watts family of England. Col. Richard Blackburn was a prominent figure in Colonial days and was highly esteemed for his character, ability, and integrity. He was Colonel of Virginia forces in the Indian Wars and was for many years a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses. As architect he built Mt. Vernon in 1733 for Lawrence Washington, an elder half-brother of Gen. George Washington.

On June 9, 1733 Richard Blackburn agreed with the Vestry to build a church at the cross-roads near Michael Reagen's - - - done after the same manner as the work upon the Pohick Church was done for the sum of 33,500 lbs of tobacco. Edward Blackburn, on January 9, 1734, gave his brother, Richard, his "Power of Atty" and left his son Edward in his care and departed for the Bermudas. (See record in Manassas Court House, Prince Wm Co.) Richard in his will mentions: "to my eldest son, John Blackburn; Jane, wife of Maj. John Bayliss; Ann, wife of John Carey; Alice, wife of Wm Elliott; to male issue of Mary, wife of John Ballendine."

Different sources vary in the list of the children of Richard and Mary Blackburn; we submit the following:

Col. Thomas Blackburn was a worthy successor of his eminent father. In 1774 and 1776, he was elected to the House of Burgesses; he was appointed a member of the Committee of Safety, December 9, 1774, from his county; he was a member of the Virginia Convention in July and December 1775; was a member of the Virginia Association for the support of the Constitutional Liberties of America; sat in councils of State with Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Mason, Patrick Henry, Tazewell, Pendleton, Lee, Randolph and others and was their intimate associate. On December 20, 1776 he was selected Lt. Col. of the Second Regiment of Virginia Infantry by the House of Burgesses in joint ballot with the Senate. During the ensuing winter he kept his regiment on his estate feeding and clothing the men and returning them to Washington's army in the Spring without charge to the Government. At the Battle of Brandywine, while serving as voluntary aide-de-camp on the staff of General Washington, he received a ball in his thigh, which lamed him for life and which was not removed until 1783. Col. Blackburn was an unselfish patriot and like Gen. Washington declined the salary to which his rank entitled him. At Washington's funeral he occupied a place of honor. His home, Rippon Lodge, was 12 miles south of Mt. Vernon, and General Washington frequently stopped overnight with the Blackburns on his way to visit his aged mother at Fredericksburg. In politics he was a Federalist. A letter written by him on the Jefferson-Burr crisis was published in the William and Mary Quarterly "Proves his zeal to have been tempered with judgment and true love of country."

The wedding breakfast held at Mt. Vernon in 1785 for Judge Bushrod Washington and Anna Blackburn, his wife, was the subject of the famous painting, said to have been by Stewart, and the artist gave full justice to the charms of the future mistress of Mt. Vernon and her beautiful sister, Mrs. Henry Smith Turner. Upon the death of Mrs. Martha Washington, Judge Bushrod Washington inherited Mt. Vernon, where Anna Blackburn Washington reigned as mistress until the death of her husband on November 26, 1829, whom she followed to the grave two days later. Mt. Vernon then passed to John Augustine Washington, who had married Jane Charlotte Blackburn, a niece of Anna Blackburn. Monuments to Anna Blackburn, Jane Blackburn and their husbands stand in front of the tomb of Gen. George Washington at Mt. Vernon. When Jane Blackburn Washington died in 1855 and her body was laid in the family vault at Mt. Vernon, it is related that the key thereto was thrown into the Potomac River.

Rippon Lodge was built in 1720 and passed from Richard Blackburn to his son, Col. Thomas Blackburn, who in turn bequeathed it to his son, Richard Scott Blackburn. The present owner (1941) is the Hon. Wade H. Ellis of Washington, D. C., who has done much to restore this historic home to its former elegance.

Data concerning the Blackburns of Rippon Lodge secured from an article by Mumsell Bros. Albany, N.Y.; an excellent book on the Blackburn family by Mrs. Vinnetta Wells Ranke of Washington, D.C.; excerpt from the Kansas City Times of March 15, 1928; and sundry notes from many sources, referring to this prominent branch of Blackburns. (Numerous Blackburns, descendants of the above pioneers, are still living in and near Hillsboro, Illinois.)

THE KENTUCKY BLACKBURNS

An extended history of this family may be found in the Register of the Kentucky Historical Society, May 1920, page 73, and January 1921, page 20 under the caption "Woodford County Notes", contributed by William E. Railey. However, the writer of the above mentioned article is in error where he states that Dr. Gideon Blackburn came to Kentucky in 1794 and was a younger brother of George Blackburn, the founder of the line we will now undertake to give.

George Blackburn was born in Virginia, January 16, 1746/47. He was the son of Edward and Ann Blackburn of Middlesex County, Va., and the grandson of William and Elizabeth Blackburn of the same County and State. George Blackburn married Prudence Berry in 1771, the daughter of Major William Berry and Molly Pryor. Molly Pryor had several brothers; "Joseph, the younger and the least of them, weighed 220 pounds". (Virginia Hist. Magazine, Vol. 7, pp 76.). George and Prudence Blackburn moved to Kentucky in 1797 (Va. Hist. Mag.). (Mr. Railey says they came to Kentucky in 1784). They settled in Woodford County and there he built a stockade against the Indians, which was known as "Blackburn's Fort."

The children of George Blackburn and Prudence Berry were- - - William B. Blackburn - - - - who married Martha Watkins, half sister of Henry Clay.
 Jonathan Blackburn - - - - who married Prudence Buford
 Mary Blackburn - - - - who married Capt. George Holloway
 George Blackburn, Jr. - - - who married 1st, Julia Flourney; 2nd, Anna Branham.
 Luke Blackburn - - - - who probably never married.

*Probably

Edward M. Blackburn - - - - who married Lavinia Berry
Elizabeth Blackburn - - - - who married Samuel Lewis.
Mildred Blackburn - - - - who married William White.
Margaret Blackburn - - - - who married John Kinhead
Ann (Nancy) Blackburn - - - who married Anthony Bartlett
Dr. Churchill Blackburn - - who married, 1st, Eleanor Arnold, 2nd, Lydia Paxton

William Blackburn and Martha Watkins had issue as follows:

1. Henrietta Blackburn, who married three times, each of her husbands being her first cousin, and each a cousin of the other. First, Dr. David Flourney Blackburn, by this marriage one son, David Flourney Blackburn, Jr.; by her second marriage to Thomas Bartlett, William and Prudence Bartlett, both blind from birth; third marriage to Francis Holloway, no issue.
2. Henry C. Blackburn, who married Susan Chiles; they had one son at least, named William. Henry C. Blackburn moved to Rock Island, Ill. before the Civil War.
3. Prudence Blackburn - information solicited.
4. Jonathan Blackburn - information solicited.

William B. Blackburn was a prominent and able statesman. He was in the Kentucky House of Representatives during the years 1804-5-6-7-11-12-13-14-15-16-25-26-27-28; was Lieutenant Governor in 1818-20; was in the State Senate in 1822-24 and 1834-38.

Jonathan Blackburn and Prudence Buford had a son, Major William Blackburn, who married Mary Bohannon. Major William Blackburn moved to St. Louis, Mo., where numerous descendants are to be found. Jonathan Blackburn is said to have been a Baptist preacher, but never had a regular appointment, preaching where and when he pleased.

Mary Blackburn and Captain George Holloway had issue as follows:

Mary Ann Holloway - - - who married Dr. Leonard Young Hodges.
George Holloway, Jr - - who married Mary Hodges
Mildred Holloway - - - who married Judge John M. Hewitt
Frank P. Holloway - - - who married 1st, Mary Branton; 2nd Henrietta Blackburn Bartlett, his own cousin, and the widow of his cousin, Thos. Bartlett.
Georgia Ann Holloway - - who married , 1st Wm. T. Willis, 2nd a Mr. Johnson
Martha Holloway - - - - who married a Mr. Monroe.

George Blackburn, Jr., a Baptist minister, and his wife Elizabeth Julia Fournery, had the following children; David F., Elizabeth, Prudence, Natley (?), Ann, Cassandra, and George Blackburn, III.

Edward M. Blackburn, commonly known as "Uncle Ned", and Lavinia Berry lived on the old farm of George Blackburn, the pioneer, near Spring Station on the L&N Railway. They were the parents of a large family; three of whom became well and favorably known for their public services. Dr. Luke Blackburn was Governor of Kentucky in 1879-1883; was also a member of the committee of doctors who successfully combatted yellow fever in the south. Captain Jo. C. S. Blackburn, another son, was a representative in the Kentucky Legislature; a member of the United States Congress in 1875-1885; elected to the U. S. Senate three times; was governor of the Panama Canal Zone in 1907. Captain James Blackburn another son, was a State Senator and also Secretary of State.

Concerning the other children of the pioneer, George Blackburn and his wife, Prudence Berry we have no data.

JAMES BLACKBURN OF VIRGINIA

James Blackburn, the subject of this sketch, left Virginia for Kentucky between 1780 and 1790. Of his parentage we are uncertain. Tradition has it that he was a son of William and Mary, a grandson of William and Elizabeth of Middlesex County, Virginia. It is further stated that James was living at Trenton, N.J. at the time of the Battle of Trenton at which time his wife is said to have arisen from a sick bed and repelled an attempt of Hessian soldiers to sack her home.

James Blackburn was the father of twelve sons; William, David, Robert, John, Thomas, Rankin, Simeon, George, _____ & _____. Of these we only have descendants of three:

THOMAS R. BLACKBURN, son of James, married Elizabeth Frances, daughter of Wm Francis of Scott County, Ky. They were the parents of William Francis, James, Rankin, George, Thomas, Robert, John, Maria, and Lavinia.

RANKIN BLACKBURN, son of James, had four sons by his first wife; James, Robert, Edward, and John. His second wife was sixteen when he married her at the age of eighty-four. They had ten children. He lived to be one hundred four years old. Of his last children we have only the names of Clarence and Emma.

SIMEON BLACKBURN, son of James, had the following children; Boyd, Wood, Elga, Dallas, Bertia, Effie and Attia.

Rankin Blackburn, son of Thomas, grandson of James, had five sons and two daughters; viz; Dick (Richard), Newton, William, Benjamin, David, Mary & Sarah Ann.

David Blackburn, son of Rankin, grandson of Thomas, had six sons and four daughters; James, William, Benjamin, Robert, Lush--(Lucien), John, Martha, Sadie, Ida and Maggie.

THE PENNSYLVANIA BLACKBURNS

About 1736 three brothers, John, Joseph and Anthony Blackburn, emigrated to America from Ballyhagan, Armagh County, Ireland, followed by possibly a fourth brother, Thomas Blackburn. They were Quakers and settled in eastern Pennsylvania, later Joseph and Anthony moved into Western Pennsylvania. Their descendants are found in large numbers at present in Pennsylvania and Ohio. They left a brother William Blackburn in England, who according to tradition became very wealthy and about 1760 news of his death arrived in America together with the rumor that he left a very large estate to which the brothers were entitled if they could prove their relationship. But the brothers were getting old and the passage to the old country was long and dangerous and no attempt was made to claim the heritage. Years passed by and the rumors of the size of the heritage grew with the years, until about 1902 the Blackburns of Pennsylvania and Ohio formed the "Blackburn Association" to investigate and claim the heritage, which at that date had grown according to report to fourteen millions of dollars--the City of Blackburn being built upon the so-called heritage. The said Association sent Dr. J. P. Blackburn and a lawyer, Thomas E. Finley of McKeesport, Pa., to England to investigate the claim. They left America in March 1903 and spent some time examining records in Ireland, also in the City of Blackburn, Lancaster, England, and finally in London, where the said William Blackburn was reported to have died. They made a very careful and exhaustive investigation. They took down data on the wills of about eighty Blackburns extending from 1738 to 1800. The will of William Blackburn who died in 1757 came most nearly meeting the traditions and is doubtless the source of the rumors so long current in the Blackburn family. This William, however, left two daughters who naturally inherited his estate, which was considerable. To one daughter he willed fifteen thousand pounds and to the other fourteen thousand five hundred pounds, and made generous gifts to several friends. He was for fifty-five years prior to his death trustee of a very large trust fund, and it was touching this trust fund that the several advertisements for heirs of William Blackburn appeared in the papers in 1757, 1802, and 1844, which reached the Blackburn family in America and raised their ardent expectations. Thus their dream of millions collapsed like a punctured balloon. The two commissioners wrote a very full and instructive report of their findings, which they had printed and distributed among the members of the "Association" who were to share in the estate "pro rata to the amount contributed by each member" to the expense of the investigation.

WILLIAM BLACKBURN REFERENCES.

A Capt. William Blackburn and his wife, Elizabeth, resided in Abingdon, Parish, Gloucester County, Va., as early as 1700. William was born at New Castle on the Tyne in Yorkshire, England, September 17, 1653. One record gives October 18, 1714 as the date of his death, another record gives his death in the year 1738. Probably there were two or possibly three men in eastern Virginia at that time by the name of William Blackburn - hence the confusion. William and Elizabeth are said to have been the parents of a large family.

The following facts are taken from the Register of Christ Church, Middlesex County, Va. -

Martha Blackburn, daughter of William and Elizabeth Blackburn, born Sep 26, William Blackburn, son of William and Elizabeth Blackburn, born 1714.
June 17, 1717.

Churchill Jones, son of Churchill and Millicent Jones, born Sept 17, 1748

John Hodges and Elizabeth Blackburn married Dec. 3, 1785

"At the lower church in Middlesex are the tombs of Dorothy and Thomas, children of William and Elizabeth Blackburn, who died respectively in 1726 and 1727. Capt. Wm. Blackburn, J.P. and Burgess, died in Middlesex in 1738." (From the Virginia Gazette)

"Roger Blackburn married Jane Hackey, Dec. 2, 1779. Paulin Anderson Blackburn married Sally Hodges, Jan. 10, 1797. Elizabeth Blackburn consents to the marriage of her daughter Millicent, born Sept. 7, 1727, daughter of William and Elizabeth Blackburn to Churchill Jones, Feb. 23, 1744, and seals with a head in helmet profile, Middlesex County, Va. In 1736 William Blackburn was made executor of a will. In 1764 the marriage bonds of Thomas Bowlers and Mary Blackburn, widow, were published in Middlesex County. Roger Blackburn in 1813 was executor of the estate of Churchill Blackburn." (From the William and Mary College Quarterly.)

Captain William Blackburn was a burgess and also on the Commission of Peace for his county, (Virginia Gazette, Jan. 12, 1738/39). "On June 9, 1733, Richard Blackburn agreed with the Vestry to build a church at the cross-roads near Michael Reagen's - - - done after the same manner as the work upon the Pohick Church was done for the sum of 33,500 lbs of tobacco." Edward Blackburn on Jan. 9, 1734, gave his brother Richard Blackburn his "Power of Atty", and left his son Edward in his care, and departed for the Bermudas. (See record in Manassas Court House, Prince Wm. County). Richard in his will mentions: "to my eldest son, John Blackburn; Jane, wife of Maj. John Bayliss; Ann, wife of John Carey; Alice, wife of Wm. Elliott; to male issue of Mary, wife of John Ballendine.".

BLACKBURNS AT PARIS, ILLINOIS

"At the early settlement of Pennsylvania, nine brothers of the Blackburn Family came and settled under Wm. Penn; they were what was denominated Scotch-Irish. John, one of their descendants, the progenitor of our branch of the family, married Nancy Maxwell about 1745 and settled in Pennsylvania where he had a family of mature age of 4 sons and 3 daughters.

From a sketch of the family and statements from other relatives of the above-mentioned William Blackburn, we present the following lineage of the Paris, Illinois family as far as we have information:

Washington, put aboard a prison ship where 3 out of 6 of his comrades died of privation and cruel treatment; married in Tenn., died in Butler County, Ohio, at the age of 87 years, leaving a family of three sons and 5 or 6 daughters. (Names unknown.)

William Blackburn (1762-1824) married Elizabeth McClanahan in 1796, moved with his mother and family to Bourbon Co., Ky., in 1794; moved to Butler Co., Ohio in 1803; moved to Sullivan Co., Ind., in 1815, where he was killed at a barn-raising by a heavy log falling on him. Children - -

BLACKBURNS AT ALBANY, N.Y.

"Captain Maxwell brought the Blackburns from County Monaghan (Ireland) to Clogher, County Tyrone, and gave them a farm on his estate."

Alexander Blackburn, of this family, seems to have been the father of THOMAS BLACKBURN, who married Martha Barkley, daughter of Frank Barkley of County Monaghan.

"Thomas was sargeant of yoemen under Captain Arkel of the Lancers."

ROBERT BLACKBURN, son of Thomas and Martha, married Sarah Barnet, only child who inherited her father's farm at Clogher, Ireland. Robert died about 1870, aged 55 years. The children of Robert and Sarah were:

"Uncle Robert Blackburn told the story about a child tied in a sack to a horse's back when on the way from Scotland. The child dropped in the road and their dog curled around it to keep it warm and they were found long after. Robert Blackburn owned several farms at Anchnaglough, County Tyrone. Landed gentleman, attended Presbyterian Church, Carin toll Meeting house. Sarah came to America about 1876 with her children, Ann, Maria, Eliza, James, and Robert. Thomas came before that, and John was 18 yrs old when he came to Troy, N.Y." (These records came from Mrs. Margaret Richie, Getty, Sunnyside, Carrickfeague, County Antrim, Ireland".) Dr. Robert Marshall Blackburn in a letter to the writer, March 24, 1930 says; "My father, John, was born in the neighborhood of Cloghet, Tyrone, in 1838. His older brother, Thomas, was the first of the family to emigrate. My father came next. Then the rest of the family in 1871 including my grandmother, William, James and Robert, Maria, Eliza and Jane. There is only one of that generation living, Maria." "John Blackburn, who married Nancy Downing, came in sailing vessel in 1857, aged 19 and had $50.00 in pocket." "Maria, Eliza and the mother came on steamship "INDIAN" 1870 and had to transfer from one ship to another off the coast of Scotland. William came in 1865. CHRISTOPHER BLACKBURN, Sr.

Christopher Blackburn was in Rappahannock Co. Va., as early as 1667; later in Essex Co., Va; his will, filed in 1693, mentions his wife, Abigail; his son, Elias; and a daughter, Mary. By tradition this Christopher Blackburn is said to have brought over from Yorkshire, England, his nephew, Richard Blackburn, as an apprentice. However, if the will of Christopher was filed in 1693 and Richard of Rippon Lodge was not born until 1706, the tradition lacks chronological support. Elias Blackburn, son of Christopher, died in 1770; he is said to have been the father of Christopher Blackburn (2nd), who served as "sargent" in the French and Indian War and also as Adjutant in the Revolutionary war; said to have been the father of 10 children; mentioned as heirs of Christopher are Thos. D. Blackburn, Richard Blackburn, James Blackburn, Churchill Blackburn, Wm. Blackburn (dec'd), Fanny Blackburn Sales, Sally Blackburn Carnall and Robert L. Blackburn. Thos. D. Blackburn had a son Christopher Blackburn (3rd), who was the father of Katherine Blackburn, who married A. C. Ellis, the parents of Wade Hampton Ellis, present owner (1940) of Rippon Lodge.

"Can you tell me where this family lived before 1819, when I find that William Blackburn deeds land in Newberry Co., S. C., that was given to his father, William Blackburn as a land grant,"

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, Athens, Texas - 1939, writes --

"John Blackburn, who married Jemina Boulton in 1805; parents of:

1. Salanthie, 2. James, 3. Robert, 4. William, 5. Thomas, 6. Luther Green, 7. Sterling, 8. John Ashley, 9. one sister, 10. Jemina.

"James, Robert & Will went to Ohio; Luther Green Blackburn lived in Springfield, Mo.; John Ashley Blackburn, b. March 12, 1812, d. about 1883; married Annie Colvin (1814 - ?). John and Annie were the parents of John Howard Blackburn, who married Nancy Elizabeth Satterfield; John and Nancy were the parents of: 1. Cora Ann, 2. Martha Emmiline, 3. Leon and John Ashley, Jr. Cora Ann Blackburn married Jesse Bull; their daughter, Margaret Bull, married J. R. Gibson." (John and Jemina Blackburn are supposed to have lived near Tazewell, Claiborne County, Tenn.)

CAPTAIN JAMES BLACKBURN, from Pennsylvania, fought at Stony Point during War of Rev. James and Samuel Blackburn were among the first purchasers of lots at Cincinnati in 1792; Capt. James moved to Warren Co., Ohio, in 1806, near Lebanon; his son, Benjamin was born in Cincinnati, Jan. 30, 1790. Benjamin served in the War of 1812, and was a member of that unfortunate military expedition under the command of Gen. Hull. Benjamin's daughter born at Lebanon, Ohio, in 1833, married a Mr. Goodhart; they were the parents of George B. Goodhart of Harrison, Ohio.

A BENJAMIN BLACKBURN, (also an early settler in Cincinnati, supposed to have died in 1786) married Elizabeth Nesbitt; they were the parents of Benjamin, James, John, and Kitty Blackburn:

James became a teacher and later a Methodist preacher; married Jeanie Davies;

(Samuel Davies Blackburn (1807-1868) was their son; his children were:

((Jeanie Davies (1847- d. 1938) unmarried.

((Kate Marshall Blackburn, who married Rev. Granville Carr Waller ((Granville Waller, Jr., married Miriam Prindle

((Miriam Waller

((Granville Waller, 3rd

((Amanda Blackburn, who married Jas. G. Coke.

((Julia Marshall Blackburn, who married Wm. F. Williams.

((James Blackburn, died at 21 yrs.

((Josephine Blackburn, died at 21 yrs.

Rev. James Blackburn moved to Arkansas, where he died.

Samuel Davies Blackburn was a General in the Confederate Army in 1861

Jeanie Blackburn claimed that Benjamin was a descendant of Admiral Nicholas Blackburn and a Princess of the House of Stuart.

AMBROSE BLACKBURN, Sr.

Ambrose Blackburn, Sr. probably came from Ireland about 1740; he may have been a brother of John, William, Samuel and Benjamin Blackburn who settled near Winchester, Va., about 1753; at least the second generation called each other "cousin". Mrs. Clifford Long, deceased, January 1938 (?), formerly of Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., in a letter to the writer in 1930 states: "My first ancestor was Ambrose Blackburn, Sr.; don't know his age, but he died about 1780 - - we think Ambrose, Sr. and Benjamin were brothers and were in the French and Indian War at Braddock's Defeat, but we have been unable to prove it." Ambrose, SR., is said to have married Elizabeth Jones, left Virginia and settled in Stokes Co., N.C., about 1760. Mrs. Ranke gives the following as the children of Ambrose and Elizabeth: Augustine, Ambrose, jr., Malinda, Bennett, Daniel, Merideth

Ambrose Blackburn, Jr. (1750-1820) married Frances Jones Halbert (some variation in different sources as to the names of the wives of Ambrose, Sr. and Ambrose Jr.) Ambrose, Jr., was in M. C. during Rev. War; was Capt. of a Company of Rangers; later moved to Greenville, S. C., along with Gen. Samuel Blackburn and other members of the family, (this is another evidence of the close relationship of these two families); about 1803 moved to Maury Co. Tenn, where he died in 1820 and was buried in the family lot on his estate. A stone was erected to his memory by the S.A.R.; census of 1790 gives him six sons and two daughters - we think the following is a correct list:

- 1 (Alfred Blackburn
- 2 (Merideth Blackburn - - b. 1777
- 3 (Betsy Blackburn - - - b. 1778

ANDREW BLACKBURN was "born in Scotland and died in Bedford County, Va. His wife's name was Virginia Ann Wilson, born 1730, daughter of Alexander Wilson of Lancaster County, Pa. Andrew and Ann Blackburn were the parents of at least 3 daughters:

Mary Blackburn (1758-1820) married Benj. McFarland, Oct. 7, 1774.

Florence Blackburn who married Francis Read, Dec. 1774.

Isabelle Blackburn who married George Edger.

Will of Alexander Wilson: I, Alexander Wilson, of the Township of Salisbury, County of Lancaster and Province of Pennsylvania, yeoman, being very weak and indisposed but of perfect mind and memory; Thanks to God, therefore, calling to mind the mortality of my body knowing that it is appointed to all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament; that is to say in the first place I commit my soul to God who gave it and my body to the dust to be buried in a decent manner at the Discretion of my Executors nothing doubting but at the last day I shall receive the same again by the Mighty Power of God. And as touching such worldly estate as it has pleased God to bless me with I give and bequeath in manner following: (1) I will that my just debts and funeral charges be paid; (2) I will that my beloved wife, Catherine, have a decent, comfortable maintenance afforded her of my place and effects during her life. But if she shall see meet to remove off of it and live with any of her daughters, that then, in such case, she shall have twelve pounds allowed her yearly out of my estate for her support as well as decently interred from it, when God shall see meet to call her out of time. (3) I bequeath to my son, Andrew Blackburn, all my wearing apparel excepting my white coloured sute, which I will to my son, John, and my great coat which I will to my son Moses Wilson. (4) I will and bequeath five pounds to my grand-daughter Isabel Blackburn. (5) I bequeath five pounds to my grandson John Wilson. Finally all the rest of my estate, real and personal, I will and bequeath to my son, John Wilson. And I do appoint my trusty Friend Robert Armor and John Guthery, the executors of this which I establish as my last will and testament, hereby revoking, renouncing and disannulling all wills and testaments by me heretofore made and devised.

THE BENJAMIN BLACKBURN FAMILY.

We come now to the line of the BLACKBURN FAMILY in which the writer finds his personal lineage and in which, therefore, he is most interested. To the reader who thus far has had the patience to peruse these pages, it is patent that there were many immigrants by the name of Blackburn who came to America from Scotland, Ireland and England during the century preceding the Revolutionary War. Their descendants are now to be found in every state of the Union and their number is legion. The family relationship of the several branches is buried in the past with little hope of resurrection. In the fore-going pages we have given such fractional lineages as have come to our knowledge and hope that the same may be helpful to some seeker in genealogical lore.

Tradition says that the family of BENJAMIN BLACKBURN was of Scotch-Irish extraction and came to America from Ireland about 1724. Just where they landed, on what ship they came, where they first settled, and the exact time of their arrival, are all questions that to date remain unanswered. That Benjamin Blackburn came to America from Ireland with his parents, his brothers, John, Will, and Samuel, and other relatives seems quite certain from the evidence of family traditions and scraps of authentic data that have come to hand.

The tradition that the Benjamin Blackburn of our line was with Washington's forces at Braddock's defeat, the writer had from his mother, who asserted that she in turn had the tradition from her grandmother, Nancy Blackburn Carson, a granddaughter of the said Benjamin Blackburn. Furthermore, this Benjamin is referred to as "General Blackburn" in the "Annals of the American Pulpit", in a sketch therein of his grandson, the Rev. Gideon Blackburn. It may be that this was a complimentary title bestowed upon him because of his military services against the French and Indians or perhaps the writer of the sketch may have confused him with his son, the Gen. Samuel Blackburn, who served with distinction in the Rev. War. That he was in the conflict in 1755 is further born out by the record in Vol. VII of Henning's Statutes that he was one of the men from Frederick County, Winchester, Va., who each received 11 pounds and 2 s. for their services. Mrs. Clifford Long, now deceased, formerly of Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., stated that she was a descendant of Ambrose Blackburn, and that Ambrose and Benjamin were brothers and both were present at Braddock's defeat. The writer has never found anything to substantiate this relationship, except the fact that their grandchildren, who lived in Maury County, Tenn., called each other "cousin" and when in 1855 a number of the family of Ambrose Blackburn moved to Texas they were accompanied by a number of the family of Edward Rose Blackburn, a grandson of Benjamin. Mrs. Clifford Long also found a reference to a John Blackburn who was granted a tract of 123 acres in the County of the Isle of Wight, Virginia on Feb. 2, 1724. The same reference mentioned four brothers, John, William, Benjamin and Samuel, who apparently were the sons of the first John. The writer found a statement that William Blackburn in 1737 sold the same 123 acres--but to date we have been unable to prove or disprove that these four brothers were the same four brothers of like names who appeared in the vicinity of Winchester, Va. in or about 1742. That the Winchester Blackburns came from Chester and Lancaster Counties, Penn., seems to be well established; whether they first came to Penn, directly from Ireland or first settled in Isle of Wight Co., Va., we have been unable to determine. Since the Blackburn and Mathews families were close friends and neighbors in 1760 at Winchester, Va., and also later near Dandridge, Tenn., and Mrs. Annilu B. Odil says (1942) that she found record of one Alexander Mathews in Isle of Wight Co., Va., in 1695, in Deed Book #1 and also mentions of a John Blackburn in the same county - we are inclined to believe that the Blackburns landed in Norfolk, Va. about 1724, then moved on up to Chester Co., Penn., and then about 1742 to the neighborhood of Winchester, Va.

The first authentic date we have on the Benjamin Blackburn of our line is in 1753 when he received a grant from Lord Fairfax "to 101 acres lying on Mulberry Run in Frederick County - - - where he now lives." Probably he had rented or leased this land from Lord Fairfax for several years prior to the date of his grant. We find that Arthur Blackburn died in 1742 and his estate was probated in November of that year in Orange County. Since Frederick and Augusta Counties were taken off of Orange County in 1738, but courts were not established in these counties until 1742 or 1743, it may be that Arthur Blackburn lived near the other Blackburns in Frederick County. What kin Arthur Blackburn was to Benjamin, we do not know, but we believe that Arthur who died in 1742, Archibald Blackburn who died in Frederick Co., in 1749 and John Blackburn of the Isle of Wight, and perhaps a "James Blackburn who lived on a fertile tract of land on Marsh Creek", were brothers. (A mere hypothesis, however.)

The four Blackburn brothers of Frederick County, Virginia -- (namely, William, John, Benjamin and Samuel) - may have married before they moved from Chester Co., Pa., to Winchester. John died in July 1755. His will copied from Bk 2, page 172, Winchester, Va., reads as follows: - -

"The last will and Testament of John Blackburn Weak in Body but Perfect in mind and memory and first I Bequeath my Soul to God and my Body to be Decently Laid in the ground and all my just Debts to be Paid and the Remainder of the Estate that God Hath Blessed me with to be divided as follows and first I Bequeath to my well Beloved Wife Ann Blackburn the Third part of all my movable Estate & Likewise I Bequeath My Son James Blackburn all my Lands that I now am possessed of & Likewise I Bequeath to my Daughter Mary Blackburn Fifty Pounds of my movable Estate and all that remains of my movable Estate I allow to the schooling of my Son James Blackburn and likewise I allow my Father & Mother to have their maintenance of the Prodock of my Plantation at the Discretion of my Executors. Likewise I allow my wife and children to live together & have their living of the Prodock of my Plantation until my wife marry & I also allow that my daughter Mary Blackburn be schooled of the Prodock of my Plantation at the discretion of my Executors. Likewise I allow my son James Blackburn to be Colag Bred & if there be not sufficient of the movable Estate and what can be made of the Prodock of my Plantation to do it I allow some Part of the Land to be sold as my Executors shall see his need Requires and I constitute and appoint my well Beloved Brother Samuel Blackburn and my well Beloved Cooz Andrew Blackburn to be my Executors of this My Estate Witness my hand and Seal this 2nd day of July 1755. I appoint my Beloved Father in Law David Logan overseer over my Executors.

At a Court Held for Frederick County on Tuesday, the 5th day of August 1755. This Last Will and Testament of John Blackburn, dec'd, was Presented into Court by Samuel Blackburn and Andrew Blackburn the Executors therein named who made oath according to Law and being proved by the oaths of William Stephenson, James Blackburn and Elleanor Blackburn Witnesses thereto is admitted to record and on the motion of the said Executors and their Performing what is usual in such cases certificate is granted them a Probate thereof in Due Form.

Test. J. Wood Clerk.

In Sept. 1755 (see 7-H-217) the County made this order: -" To Samuel & Andrew Blackburn administrators of John Blackburn Estate for provisions - - - 2 pounds." Doubtless furnished for the Braddock Campaign.

From the above we note that John Blackburn was a God-fearing man; his wife's name was Ann Logan; his children appear to have been minors in 1755; he believed in education, thereby giving evidence of his Presbyterian background; we sincerely wish he had mentioned the names of his "father and mother" who were to receive their maintenance off of his plantation; could he have meant his "inlaws"? if he meant his own father and mother Blackburn, it would indicate that he was the eldest of the four brothers; (the last line of his will is a gesture of courtesy-who ever heard of an "overseer over executors"?). Somewhere we found this statement (we seem to have failed to note the source) - "In Orange County is found the declaration of David Logan and a man of the Wilson's as to their arrival in Virginia thro Philadelphia about 1740." We might assume that John Blackburn and Ann Logan were married about 1742 and that the children were under fifteen years and John Blackburn was probably not over 40 years old at the time of his death.

WILLIAM BLACKBURN, brother of John - of him we know but little. According to (7-H-216) he received pay for the Braddock campaign. He is mentioned before Benjamin, which might indicate that he was older than Benjamin. He had a son named Benjamin (see Samuel's will to follow.)

SAMUEL BLACKBURN, a third brother, "married Eleanor Provine in Chester County, Pa., about 1748. Her sister, Ann Provine, married Francis McCormick. They were two of the four daughters of Thomas Provine. The Blackburns sold their interest in the iron ore mining on Mulberry Run to the Provines and Morgans". (Mr. Griffith in Recorder's office in Winchester, Va. 1940.)

Samuel and Eleanor Blackburn had no children. They first lived south-west of Winchester, Va., but sold out their holdings there and took up lands about ten-miles east of Winchester, where Samuel became quite wealthy. In his will probated October 1776, he mentions: "my wife Eleanor Blackburn; my nephew Samuel Blackburn, son of my brother Benjamin; my nephew Benjamin Blackburn, son of my brother William; my wife's nephew, Samuel McCormick; John Blackburn, son of James Blackburn". (relationship of James not given, we assume it is James the son of his brother John.) Among the assets of his estate is mentioned "one white servant". The total value of his slaves is given as 350 pounds.

Andrew Blackburn, a cousin, married Ann Wilson of Chester Co., Pa. Archibald Blackburn who died in 1749 was probably an uncle of the four brothers. Archibald had a daughter, Elizabeth, who married William Wilson in 1746 "in the Valley of Virginia". George, Arthur and William Blackburn were another set of brothers, and close relatives to the Benjamin Blackburn family. Perhaps they were the sons of Arthur Blackburn who died in 1742. These three brothers had at least three sisters namely, Mary, Martha and Margaret. All these Blackburns settled on or near Mulberry Run which is a small stream that empties into Cedar Creek just below a small settlement of half-a-dozen houses and a well-preserved stone Presbyterian Church. Once the town boasted of 600 inhabitants; today little remains of its former glory. The Blackburns are said to have been iron mongers and dug the ore from the banks of Mulberry Run and crushed the ore by means of a heavy hammer operated by a water wheel at the falls of Cedar Creek. They were instrumental in organizing the Presbyterian Church at that place in 1762.

Recorded, Aug. 29, 1794.

We found no marriage records on file in the Court House at Winchester, Va., prior to 1780. We were told by the recorder that prior to that date marriage records were kept in the Church Parish Records, and that most of these church records were now missing. Since Benj. Blackburn came to Frederick County prior to 1753, the marriage records of his sons Benjamin, Jr., John and Robert were probably entered in the records of the Cedar Creek Presbyterian Church. John married Janet Mathews April 4, 1765; Robert married Margaret Richie probably in 1766. A letter received Nov. 1st, 1941, from Rev. Harry M. Crim, recent pastor of the Cedar Creek Church states that all the session records prior to 1815 have been lost.

From the records given above, we see that ARTHUR, GEORGE, and WILLIAM BLACKBURN received a land grant from Lord Fairfax on Mulberry Run, Jan. 3, 1755. This tract was adjacent to the land of William Wilson, whom we assume to be the same William Wilson who married Elizabeth Blackburn, daughter of Archibald Blackburn, in 1746. These three brothers had three sisters; namely, Mary, Martha and Margaret. We note that Margaret was the name of the administrator of the estate of Archibald Blackburn and doubtless she was his widow. The fact that one of these three sisters bore the name of Margaret and that the land grant was adjacent to the land of Wm. Wilson, a son-in-law of Archibald, may indicate that these three brothers and three sisters were the children of Archibald and Margaret Blackburn; while the name, Arthur, might point to Arthur Blackburn who died in 1742 as their father.

Arthur, George and William sold their land grant in Frederick County in 1769, as did John and Janet, and Robert and Margaret. We think this indicates that the Blackburn family at that date left Frederick County and moved on southward in the Valley of Virginia to the vicinity of the county line between Augusta and Rockbridge Counties. There they remained until 1772 when Arthur, George and William moved to Washington County in southwestern Virginia. There these three brothers became prominent in the political and communal life of that frontier country. George was appointed Justice of the Peace by Patrick Henry, Governor of Virginia; William was elected Lieutenant of the County Militia under Col. Wm. Campbell; Arthur served as a private in the Fincastle Volunteers under Capt. Evan Shelby at the Battle of Point Pleasant, October 1774, against the Indians. Two Presbyterian congregations were organized at Sinking Springs (Abingdon) and Ebbing Springs; and in June 1773, a call was sent by these churches to the Rev. Charles Cummings of Augusta County inviting him to come and take charge of these two congregations. Of the 133 petitioners, George and William Blackburn were the first two signers and the name of Arthur Blackburn was the fourteenth. The Indians were a constant menace to these frontier settlements. On July 24, 1776, they made an attack on Black's Fort (now Abingdon) and after the Indians were repulsed and had apparently left the vicinity, a number of the settlers left the protection of its walls and went out to visit their homes in the neighborhood. The Indians fell upon this party and "Arthur Blackburn was shot, tomahawked and scalped, but was found alive and recovered from his wounds." In the party were "William Casey and his sister, Nancy, a beautiful girl of sixteen. As Casey was running for his life to the fort, he discovered the Indians in hot pursuit of his sister, and seeing Robert Harold, another man close by, he called to him to come and help him save Nancy. Harold obeyed. By managing to fire alternately they kept the Indians at bay until the girl was safely in the fort." (Sumner's Southwest Virginia, pp 231.) We might add that Arthur Blackburn lived to fight another day and in 1780 was one of the patriotic band of mountaineers who won enduring fame by their victory over the British and their Tory Allies at KING'S MOUNTAIN. On Feb. 24, 1774, 130 acres were surveyed off to Arthur Blackburn on the "Waters of Middle Fork of the Holston River". On December 21, 1774, 220 acres were surveyed off for William Blackburn on a "Branch of Holston".

The WILL of GEORGE BLACKBURN was probated August 18, 1778. His estate was left to his "sister Margaret Casey, wife of William Casey; to his brothers, Arthur Blackburn and William Blackburn; to his sister Mary White; to his brother-in-law Samuel Vance; to Andrew Colville and to his daughter Sarah Blackburn." The will of Samuel Vance, probated the same day, leaves his estate to his wife, Sarah, and his children, Margaret Lusk, Elizabeth Blackburn and Samuel Vance, Jr.; executors, Samuel Vance and George Blackburn; witnesses, Arthur Blackburn, John Blackburn, John Cusick. This Samuel Vance was, no doubt, the father of the wife of George Blackburn and the grandfather of the Samuel Vance, who in 1803 married Mary Blackburn, a daughter of Lt. William Blackburn. Lt. William Blackburn was killed October 7, 1780 in the Battle of King's Mt. His name is recorded on the monument that stands on the battle-field. On November 24, 1780, letters of administration on his estate were granted to his widow, Elizabeth (Black) Blackburn, and her brother, Capt. Joseph Black, and John Blackburn. They together with Samuel Vance and John Davis gave bond for 8000 pounds. The heirs of his estate are given as Mary, Jean, Margaret, Patsy and Sally. In a deed to 220 acres on "Head Spring Creek" dated September 24, 1789, the grantees mentioned are Jean, Mary, Margaret, Martha and Sarah. This is probably the same 220 acres that was surveyed off to their father in 1774. The WILL of ARTHUR BLACKBURN was probated August 20, 1782 in Washington Co. Va. His estate was left to his sister, Margaret Casey, his sister, Martha Rodgers, his sister, Mary White, and to John Blackburn. Executors John Blackburn and John Berry. Witnesses to will: Janet Blackburn, James Douglas, Elizabeth Black and William McElwin.

*(I question the dates 1748, 1829 and 1771 especially. If William got a land grant with his brother in 1755, he must have been in his twenties, at least, at that time. 1829 is after the birth of James, the son, in 1828; 1771 is four years before the date given for the marriage of William and Elizabeth. (I think I got these dates from Sarah Shephard's DAR record. WAC.)

It is interesting to note that in connection with the settlement of the estates of these three brothers in Washington Co., Va., that John Blackburn had a part in each estate. They must have been first cousins of John, - or first cousins once removed.

We will now get back again to BENJAMIN BLACKBURN, since we have given about all we know concerning his three brothers, and the other Blackburns who were in the vicinity of Winchester, Va., from 1740 to 1770. The name of Benjamin's wife was Mary _____, whom he probably married about 1737 in Chester or Lancaster Co., Penn. They seem to have come to Frederick Co, Va., about 1742; then on down to the neighborhood of Steele's Tavern (present name, 1941) about 1770; near Providence Presbyterian Church and were neighbors to the McCormicks (of reaper fame) and the Steele family; then in 1784 Benjamin followed his sons John, Robert and Archibald down into the Watauga Country, whither his sons had migrated about 1773. On Feb. 5, 1784, Benjamin Blackburn purchased for 150 pounds, 200 acres in Washington Co., State of North Carolina "lying on both sides of Onion Branch and the East Branch of Little Limestone Creek". This tract is located about one mile south of Washington College, which in that pioneer day was conducted by the Rev. Samuel Doak under the name of Martin Academy. Gideon Blackburn when he was twelve years old lived with his grandfather for some time and attended Martin Academy.

BENJAMIN BLACKBURN on August 10th, 1786, drew up the following will:

"IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN: August 10th in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, I, Benjamin Blackburn, of the State of Franklin and County of Washington, farmer, being weak and frail in body but in perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God, therefore, calling to mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, I do make, constitute and ordain this MY LAST WILL and TESTAMENT, what is to say, principally and first of all, I recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it to me, and my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in a decent Christian-like manner at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting but that at the General Resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God. And as to such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to help me in this life, (1) I do give and bequeath and dispose of it in the following manner and form: "imprimis"; I do give and bequeath to my dearly and well-beloved wife, MARY BLACKBURN, good, sufficient, genteel and handsome maintenance during her life of all things necessary and likewise one good comfortable horse and one good cow to be kept and possessed by her as her own property.

(Note: the foregoing will not signed by testator.)

The foregoing will was proven in court by oath of Andrew Hannah, one of the subscribing witnesses thereto at August 1791 & recorded. (See record in WILL BOOK #1 pp22 in Jonesboro, Tenn.)

Benjamin Blackburn in his will gave to each of his grandsons named Benjamin, a Bible. It is interesting to note that he had a name-sake in the family of each of his children mentioned in the will except in the family of Samuel, who died without issue. Benjamin, son of John Blackburn, died in 1785; and perhaps that explains why the grandfather designated "my son John Blackburn's son Samuel to receive a Bible". The only mystery is that not one of the twelve children of John Blackburn, all of them born prior to 1786, was named Samuel. Who was Samuel? We looked carefully at the record in Jonesboro and it is "Samuel" without a doubt.

Benjamin and Mary Blackburn were the parents of eleven children:

1. Benjamin - (1738-1834) married _____ three sons, four daughters, perhaps more.
2. John - - - (1740-1808) married Janet Mathews, April 4, 1765.

3. Robert - - (1742-1809?) married Margaret Richie about 1766.
six sons, six daughters.
4. Andrew - - (1744-

5. James - - (1746-
6. Elizabeth (1749- ?) married Thomas Bay.
eight sons, one daughter.
7. Archibald (1751-1823) married, 1st, Rosannah Steele; 2nd, Isabel _____?
six sons, three daughters, perhaps others.
8. George - - (1753-
9. William - (1755-
10. Ann (Nancy) (1757- ?) married John Weir, Rev. War Vet.
three sons, five daughters - perhaps others.
11. Samuel - - (1759-1835) married Anne Mathews, daughter of Gov. Geo. Mathews.

I. BENJAMIN BLACKBURN (1738-1834)

Benjamin Blackburn, the eldest son of Benjamin and Mary Blackburn, was one of the one hundred and fifty men from Augusta County, Va., who served under Col. Charles Lewis in Dunmore's Indian War. He served as sergeant in Col. Chas Lewis' company in the Battle of Point Pleasant, October 10, 1774 when the Indians lead by the famous Shawnee Chief, Cornstalk, sought to wipe out the Virginian Volunteers, before their juncture with Lord Dunmore's forces. In an all-day battle, one of the greatest battles ever fought between the Indians and their white opponents, the Indians were finally driven back and forced to yield the field. In the Annals of Augusta County (Vol. I, pp. 230) we find that "Benjamin Blackburn proved that he was disabled in the service at the Battle of Point Pleasant by losing the use of two fingers of his left hand". In a pamphlet called "Revolutionary Soldiers in Alabama", Miss Augusta Bradford of Chattanooga, Tenn., found this item: "Benjamin Blackburn, age not given, a resident of Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, private in Lewis's Regiment; date of enrollment not given, payment to date from April 1, 1810, annual allowance $60.00; sums received $363.90; transferred from Tennessee Sept. 14, 1819; on April 24, 1816 rate increased to annual allowance of $96.00 under which the sum of $1715.18 received to date of publication of lists. Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Vol. 14, Senate Document 514; 23rd Congress, 1st Session, 1833-34." Arthur Blackburn from the Holston Region was also in the above battle. He was a private in Capt. Evan Shelby's Company from Fincastle County.

In the course of proving the claims of the children of Benjamin, Jr., to share in the estate of the Gen. Samuel Blackburn, Benjamin of the third generation, writes under date of 1835: That "my father Benjamin Blackburn died Sept. 24, 1834; my brother, John, lives in Fayette Co., Alabama; my sister Mary Davis, lives in the State of Mississippi near Columbus, about eighty miles from Tuscaloosa; my sister, Jane Wallace, lives in Lawrence Co, in Alabama, about one hundred miles from Tuscaloosa; my sister, Sally Derwin, lives in Jackson Co. Alabama, about one hundred thirty miles from Tuscaloosa; sister Asena has been twice married, first to Ezekiel Harlen, and then to a Mr. Miller. Have not seen her for twenty years, she lived near Lexington, Kentucky. Brother James has removed to Arkansas. Myself and wife have thirteen children, nine sons and four daughters". John Wallace, his brother-in-law, states in an affidavit: "That five children of Benjamin Blackburn (brother of Gen. Samuel Blackburn) are living. First, my wife, Jane Wallace; Polly Davis living five miles from Columbus, Missi, Benjamin Blackburn living in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, John Blackburn living in Marion Co., Ala.; Sally Derwin living in Jackson Co. Alabama".

Miss Jeanie Blackburn of Bowling Green, Ky., granddaughter of a James Blackburn and great granddaughter of a Benjamin Blackburn, writes under date of July 24, 1925: "There were three brothers, Benjamin, James, John and a sister Kitty. Their father, I was told, was Benjamin. My father, General Samuel Davies Blackburn, a scientist and lawyer, was of Scotch-ancestry; and descended from Benjamin who was disabled in the war with the Indians - disabled and could not serve in the Rev. War - - Aunt Mary also told me her grandfather was wounded and unable to serve in the Revolution - - Samuel Davies Blackburn, son of Rev. James Blackburn and Jeanie Davies, his wife, son of Benjamin Blackburn and Elizabeth Nesbitt, his wife, whose children were Benjamin, James, John, and Kitty - - . The Nesbitts were connected with the sea faring interests as were the Blackburns - - - James Blackburn from teaching became a minister of the gospel, left his father living in Tennessee, John and Benjamin, his brothers and a sister Kitty, and went to the wilds of Arkansas after the birth of his four children - - my father's father was highly educated and taught my father, who never had an English grammar, but attained what he knew from his Latin one - - - when quite a child I personated Mary Queen of Scots - - all the girls said I looked just like Queen Mary. My mother said nothing but my father raised his eyes from his book and said to her: "Lizzie, do you think a strain of physical resemblance could be perpetuated to a third or fourth generation?" I asked how - "Well, you are a descendant of the Stuarts". - - - years after his death by chance I met an aged aunt and asked her could we have been connected with the Stuarts - - - she replied, "Our Blackburn ancestor was a Lord High Admiral of the seas and his ship was wrecked on the coasts of Scotland and he met the young princess Stuart of the Royal House of Scotland and later returned and married her."

There seems to be strong evidence to believe that the great grandfather of Jeanie Blackburn of Bowling Green, Ky., and the Benjamin Blackburn (1738-1834) of this discussion were one and the same person. First, the wound that prevented him from taking part in the Rev. War; second, the names of the children; third, the son James who went to Arkansas. If some one could supply the name of the wife of our Benjamin (1738-1834) the point might be finally determined. By correspondence we have tried to get in touch with some of the Blackburn descendants who must still be living in Alabama, but have been unsuccessful in getting any replies. If we could get access to the family records that must surely be in the "Great Bible" which Benjamin of the will of 1791 gave to his eldest son Benjamin, we would doubtless find some very interesting information about the patriarchs of this family who came over from Ireland and Scotland. One daughter of John, son of Benjamin (1738-1834) was named Nancy Blackburn.

II. JOHN BLACKBURN (1740-1808)

John Blackburn, second son of Benjamin and Mary Blackburn was born Dec. 25, 1740, probably in Chester County, Pa. On Feb. 9, 1764 he received a land grant from Lord Fairfax on Mulberry Run in Frederick Co., Va. April 2, 1765 he married Jane (Janet) Mathews. Janet was born April 23, 1747, died Sept. 29, 1818. She and her husband were buried in the old cemetery at Dandridge, Tenn.

Their children were: -

Alexander - - born Jan. 14, 1766; killed at Babson's Ferry below Dandridge by the Indians, and is said to have been the first man buried in the Dandridge cemetery.

Benjamin - - born March 8, 1767; died at 18 years of age. (1785)

Mary - - - born Nov. 1st 1768; married James Moyers Nov. 3, 1789.

Andrew - - - born Dec. 13, 1770; married, 1st Margaret Samples, 2nd Catherine McGirk.

William - - - - born Oct. 7, 1772; married Amy Samples; 2nd
Grizelle - - - - born Oct 27, 1774; Married her 1st cousin, Gideon Blackburn
George - - - - - born May 26, 1776; married Martha Neely
John - - - - - born Mch 24, 1778; Elizabeth McGirk
Edward - - - - - born June 3, 1780; Margaret McGirk
Jane - - - - - born June 3, 1780; married Thomas Snoddy
James - - - - - born Oct. 2, 1782; married Catherine Jamieson
Nancy - - - - - born Apr. 7, 1785; married John Carson

John and Jane Blackburn sold their land grant in 1769 in Frederick Co., Va., and with a number of Blackburn families moved down to the south side of Augusta County or over the line into Rockbridge County. There they remained until probably the summer of 1773 when they moved on down and settled on Beaver Creek between the present location of Abingdon and Bristol. John served on the Jury of Washington County, Va., in May 1778, June 1779, May 1781, August 1782 and Nov. 1782. He is mentioned as being an elder in the Sinking Springs Presbyterian Church at Abington, County seat of Washington County in 1782. On September 25, 1780 he was one of the band of four hundred men who under Col. William Campbell joined forces with their compatriots under Shelby and Sevier and marched over the Smokies and wiped out Col. Ferguson's force of British regulars and Tories at the famous Battle of King's Mountain. In Nov. 1780 he was one of the administrators of the estate of Lt. Wm Blackburn, who was killed at King's Mt. He also appears in 1782 as a beneficiary in the will of Arthur Blackburn, which was witnessed by his wife "Janet Blackburn". It is reported that he served seven years in the militia of Washington County; however in 1787 he received from North Carolina for his services, a military grant of 400 acres on Long Creek in Green County, to which locality he probably moved in 1783. When John Sevier was elected Governor in 1784 of the ill-starred State of Franklin, he appointed John Blackburn Justice of Peace. He was a member of the first court held in Jefferson County. This court met in the home of Jeremiah Mathis about four miles west of Dandridge. The old house is still pointed out on the road to the home of John K. Blackburn (1940). Later, when John Sevier became Governor of Tennessee, he again appointed John Blackburn, Justice of Peace.

Military Land Grant No. 265, recorded in Book B, page 36, North Carolina Military Book, Nashville Tennessee, reads as follows:

"KNOW YE, that we have given and granted unto John Blackburn a tract of land containing four hundred acres, lying in our county of Green on Long Creek; Beginning at two box oaks and a pine on a hill and running thence north two hundred and forty poles to a white oak on the south of a hill crossing the branch at two hundred and twenty-four poles, thence north fifty-seven degrees east on the line between said Blackburn and Samuel McGarey three hundred and twenty poles at a stake on the top of a hill; thence south forty degrees east on the line between said Blackburn and Andrew McFerren one hundred and thirty-eight poles; to a red oak on a hill crossing a branch at sixty-five poles; thence south forty-eight degrees west four hundred and seventy poles to the beginning TO hold to the said John Blackburn and his heirs and assigns forever. Dated this 20th day of September 1787.

"Wt. No. 80, surveyed by Jas. Kamper, Jno Hines and Henry Haggard, chain carriers."
Richard Caswell was Governor of North Carolina in 1787. It would seem from the description that John Blackburn had already settled in the tract and had marked its boundaries.

We will have more to say concerning John Blackburn and his wife, Janet Mathews later when we take up the lineage of his children and grandchildren.

III. ROBERT BLACKBURN

Robert Blackburn, third son of Benjamin and Mary Blackburn, and father of the Rev. Gideon Blackburn, D.D., was born in 1742 and died (according to one source) on Feb. 9, 1809. Since this date is exactly one year later than the date of the death of his older brother, John Blackburn, we are inclined to doubt the authenticity of the date and suspect confusion of dates in the mind of the informant. As previously mentioned Robert Blackburn received a land grant from Lord Fairfax in Frederick Co., Va., on the "drains of Opekcon Creek", which lies a few miles south west of Winchester. His marriage in 1765 or 1766 to Margaret Richie was probably recorded in the lost church records of the Cedar Creek Presbyterian Church. He and Margaret sign a deed to the land grant tract in 1769 and doubtless moved on down to the Augusta-Rockbridge County line, where their 3rd son, Gideon (who was destined to be the most famous of all the Blackburn line), was born August 27, 1772. We understand the Blackburns were members of the Providence Presbyterian Church near Steele's Tavern and that several of the family are buried in the old cemetery at that place. Here they remained only four or five years and then moved on down to the neighborhood of what is now Bristol, Tenn. In the campaign against the Chickamauga Indians in April 1779, we find the name of Robert Blackburn as a private in the Company of Capt. James Shelby. The results of this campaign had far reaching results on the peace and security of the frontier settlements in Virginia and North Carolina and even on the prosecution of the Rev. War, and deserves more credit than it has received at the hands of the historian of that period. Without the disastrous defeat administered to the Indians in April 1779, it is doubtful whether there would have been any victory at King's Mountain in 1780. On that occasion Col. Evan Shelby accompanied by some 500 men set out down the Tennessee River in boats, surprised the Indians in their mountain villages, captured war booty to the sum of $20,000 which the Indians and their British allies had collected in anticipation of waging a war of extermination against the American frontiers. The booty was auctioned off to the soldiers on a small creek which thereafter took the name of Sale Creek. On this creek some twenty years later the Rev. Gideon Blackburn established one of his schools for the Cherokee Indians. We find no mention of Robert Blackburn in Summer's Annuals of Southwest Virginia, so we assume that he settled south of Bristol, near the Shelby family, in what is now Sullivan County, but then a part of Washington County, N.C., for we find these records:

"Robert Blackburn was on the jury Feb. 22, 1779 Washington County" (Am. Hist. Mag. Vol. 5, pp 365). Also again in Washington County Court records, Feb. 26, 1781 gives: -

"Robert Blackburn was a member of the Grand Jury of Washington Co., N.C., which met May 25, 1780, at the house of Charles Robertson."

Robert Blackburn received a land grant in 1787 from the state of North Carolina (See Book of Military land grants, Book B, pp 35 #267 in Nashville Historical Library). Described in part as "a tract of 200 acres in Green County on Richland Creek on the north side of the Nolichucky River - - adjoining the land of Henry Fernworth, Mr. Leeper, & Mr. McKehan." At the time the grant was made, Robert doubtless was living on that tract.

In 1789 Robert and Margaret Blackburn sell 225 acres on the south side of Little Limestone Creek. This tract could not have been very far from his father's 200 acres purchased in 1784, which lay "on both sides of Onion branch and Little Limestone Creek" just south of the present town of Limestone. At this time (1789) Robert and his family must have moved down into Davidson County, for in 1794 we

Mr. John W. Blackburn:

Your letter of Aug. 18th was received some time since and I assure you it was most welcome. It has more Blackburn history in it than any letter I have read on the subject. My father had a family tradition that all Blackburns in America were descendants of four brothers who emigrated from England in early times and were blood kin. I have no doubt that if the tracing can be definitely and accurately done, it would show some relationship between us, though it would be distant probably. Your ancestor, it is true, came from Ireland to Penn. but the probability is he went from England to Ireland first. Richard and Edward Blackburn (brothers) came from England, Yorkshire Co., and William Blackburn the ancestor of J.W., T. R., A. B., and John H. Blackburn of Staunton, Va., was born in Yorkshire, England and came to Jefferson Co., Va., in 1759. They might all have been brothers or close relatives, I don't know. You asked me to what branch of the family I belong, I cannot get beyond my grandfather as yet. I have spent most of my life away from my people--leaving home at 16 - roving about some years - and then went to school four or five years paying my own way - from the school soon to the Confederate Army - and since the war have lived in Tenn. and my folks in Texas - so I have no access to the family records - and can only give them from recollection as they were told me at various times.

My grandfather, Edward Blackburn, was born in Virginia about 1775, married Martha Kearney (Carney) about 1805 or 1806. Issue: Edward, Prudence, Betsy, Jane, John L D, Martha, Gideon, Asenath, Sarah, Robert Samuel.

My father Edward R. Blackburn was born 1808, married Jane Dickey 1809. Issue; Samuel E., Allison, J.K.T. , Latvia, Annet, Alice, Ida, Albert S., W.T.F.

My family, JKT Blackburn born Feb. 20, 1837, married Mary M. Laird, born Sept. 1845; married Feb. 10, 1867. Issue: Nanie G. 1868, Robert E. 1869, James K. 1871, John Laird 1873, William S., 1876, D. Gordon, 1878, Samuel S., 1880. "Mackie", 1886, Henry, 1890.

Gen. Samuel Blackburn was my grandfather's uncle and a brother of my great grandfather, Rev. Gideon B. was my grandfather's brother. If I could obtain their history or the name of their ancestors, it would be valuable in getting upon my family history. The material I have in hand you ask for consists of the Blackburn family chart published by Joseph Munsell & Sons, Albany, N.Y. The chart commences with the Col. Richard Blackburn of Dumfries, Va., and deals with his descendants. But John S. B. of Alexandria, Va., says that Hayden in his genealogy of Va., says that Richard B. had a brother Edward B. and from his descendants Gen. Samuel B. of Bath Co., Va. I have written back to John S. B. for a copy of Hayden on this point. I write to ask you to please copy and send all that Waddell says of the Blackburns in his annals of Augusta Co., Va. and much obliged.

Your friend,
JKP Blackburn

About 1856 Edward Rose Blackburn, his widowed mother, and several of his brothers and sisters removed to Texas. Capt. John Porter Blackburn, three brothers and two sisters of the Ambrose Blackburn line removed to Texas at the same time. We have only fragmentary notes on their descendants.

VII.- ARCHIBALD BLACKBURN (1751-1823), son of Benj. & Mary Blackburn was born about the time the Blackburns moved from Penn. to Frederick Co., Va.; married first, Rosannah Steele, daughter of Nathaniel and Rosannah Steele, grand-daughter of David Steele: (Aug Co., Rec. Vol. 3 pp 232); deed to Archibald between 1772-73; "Dedimus to take deposition of Archibald Blackburn who lives in Nolichuckey" (Aug Co. Rec. Vol. 1 pp 227, date Oct. 15, 1782). Aug. Co. Rec. Vol. 3 pp 209, see Nathaniel Steele's will for mention of Nathaniel Blackburn; date Oct. 13, 1795; (Aug Co. Rec. Vol. 3 pp 232) will of Rosannah Steele mentions Archibald Blackburn, son-in-law and Rosannah Blackburn, granddaughter.

The following nine children of Archibald Blackburn were living on Mch 2, 1835:

1. Nathaniel Blackburn
2. Benjamin Blackburn, who married Rachel Mathes, dau. of Alexander Mathes.
3. Rosannah Blackburn, who married John Mathes, son of Alexander Mathes.
4. Samuel Blackburn, who lived in Virginia with his uncle Gen. Sam'l B.
5. Polly Blackburn who married Henry Hoss.
6. William Blackburn, had a son Samuel, mentioned in his brother Sam'l's will.
7. Thomas Blackburn
8. Elizabeth Blackburn who married J. Mann; evidently lived with her brother Samuel in Virginia.
9. Archibald Blackburn.

Archibald Blackburn (1751-1823) moved down to Limestone, Tenn., about 1782 or 1784, with his father's family and the Mathes family. Archibald received grant of land (see Hist. Archives, Nashville, Tenn. Bk B. pp 163 Grant #389) a tract of land containing 400 acres lying and being in our county of Green on the south side of the Nolichuckey and on little Lick Creek."

Archibald was evidently married twice. We infer that the first four were the children of Archibald and Rosannah; and the last five were the children by the second wife, Isabell _____. In his will, probated in Washington Co., Tenn., in October 1823, he mentions "my beloved wife Isabel Blackburn" and the nine children enumerated above; his son William Blackburn and his son-in-law Henry Hoss and John Mathes are made executors. The-witnessess to the will were John Nelson, David Nelson, David Brown.

Gen. Samuel Blackburn in his will made "Samuel Blackburn, Jr., son of my brother Archibald" one of the executors of his will and states that Samuel Blackburn, Jr. had "superintended my business for many years".

Samuel Blackburn, Jr. (No. 4 above) in his will made in 1855 mentions "my sister Elizabeth Mann; my two nieces, Amanda Sitlington and Elizabeth Mann; my brother, William's son Samuel" and wills the residue of his estate to all his nephews and nieces living at his death "with the exception of one and that is Alfred Hoss of Phila." (We don't know what ill will he held against Alfred Hoss, who is said to have been a very worthy man.)

In the cemetery on the campus of Washington College, Limestone, Tenn. we saw the grave of Henry Hoss, but could find no stones to the memory of any Blackburns, although we feel confident that Benjamin, Sr., Archibald, his son, and others of the Blackburn family must have been buried there, as the home of Benjamin which he gave to Archibald at his death in 1790 was located only a mile from Limestone, "on Onion branch and Limestone Creek."

Benjamin Blackburn (No. 2 above) married Rachel Mathes (b. 1795). Issue:

1. John Blackburn "moved to Missouri"
2. Elizabeth Blackburn "moved to Missouri"
3. Ebenezer Blackburn "moved to Ga. and died shortly. Probably went with his Uncle Samuel."
4. William Blackburn "left home and never heard of."
5. Archibald Blackburn, Jr., "died at home."
6. Louisa Blackburn "married a Mr. Gillespie of Blount Co., Tenn."
7. Isabella Blackburn "married Dr. Gillespie, son of Louisa's husband."
8. Lucinda Blackburn, "married a Mr. Taylor of Blount Co., Tenn."
9. Nancy Blackburn, b. 1825; m. Dr. M. F. Gerald, M.D. in U.S. army 61-65.
(Chalmers Gerald "lives in Greenville, Tenn.")
10. Amanda Blackburn, m. Campbell Teahorn and moved to California.

Rosannah Blackburn (No. 3 above) daughter of Archibald Blackburn, married John Mathes. Issue:

- (Archibald Alexander Mathes (1812-1891) walked to Princeton; became an able Pres. minister; was instructor at Washington College in 1838; Vice-Pres. in 1840.
- (Allen Mathes
- (William Mathes married Susan Mathes, dau. of Geo. Leigh Mathes & Phoebe Weir, a first cousin on his father's side and a first cousin once removed on his mother's side.
- (Mary Jane Mathes
- (Lavinia Evelyn Mathes married James H. Blackburn, a 2nd cousin.

Samuel Blackburn, Jr. (No. 4 above) mentions no wife or children in his will of 1855; from the text we might infer that he never married.

Polly (Mary) Blackburn (No. 5 above) married Henry Hoss, who was Pres. of Greenville College: Issue:

- (Alfred Hoss married his cousin, Francina Pouder, dau. of Judge Leonard Pouder, of Maryland. Alfred Hoss succeeded his father as Pres. of Greenville Col.
- (Alfred had no children. He was very slender and tall; his wife very short.
- (Samuel Blackburn Hoss, married Almada Snell:

These two sons of Benj. and Mary Blackburn probably died in early childhood - no mention of them is made in their father's will in 1791. Of course, they might have been killed in the Rev. War, but it would appear very probable that we would have found some mention of that fact somewhere in some of the data left, if that had been true.

XI GENERAL SAMUEL BLACKBURN (1759-1835)

SAMUEL BLACKBURN, the youngest son of Benjamin and Mary Blackburn, was born in 1759. He served during the Revolutionary War with the Virginian forces. He must have served with distinction, as he came out of the war with the title of General and received a grant from the United States of eight hundred fifty acres of land in Madison County, Ohio, apparently for his services. In 1784 he moved with his father to what is now Washington County, Tennessee where he attended Washington College, which conferred the degree of A.B. upon him in 1785. He moved on down into Georgia, where he taught for some time at the Academy at Washington, Wilkes County. He married Anna Mathews, daughter of the Georgian Governor, General George Mathews who served in the Indian Wars and the War of the Revolution. This item is found in Draper's King's Mountain and Its Heroes. "John Sevier was sent to school in Staunton; while there he accidentally fell into a mill-race and was saved from drowning by the heroic efforts of two young ladies, one of whom subsequently became the wife of George Matthews, one of the heroes of Point Pleasant and subsequently a Colonel in the Revolution and Governor of Georgia". General Samuel Blackburn after his marriage settled in Elbert County on Broad River, Ga. He was advancing successfully in his legal profession and in political influence until the meeting of the State Legislature in 1795. He was a member of that Legislature in 1795 which passed the infamous "Yazoo Act" which rendered him so unpopular that he left the State and went back to Virginia where he practiced law in Bath County until his death. However, it is stated that the allegations against the integrity of General Blackburn were founded upon the most trivial circumstances.

General Samuel Blackburn was a "classical scholar and was one of the lost eloquent men of his time." After his return to Bath County, Virginia, he entered actively into the practice of law, and the records of Augusta County bear record that he was "qualified to practice law on November 15, 1796". He represented Bath County in the Virginian Legislature a number of times and was reputed to have been instrumental in placing the first legal restraint against dueling upon the Statutes of Virginia; the first action of that kind passed in the United States. He died March 2, 1835, and is buried in the Episcopalian Cemetery at Staunton, Va. His will and the settlement of his estate is quite long, but since it contains much valuable history and genealogy of the Blackburn relationship, we will add it to this narrative.

Will of General Samuel Blackburn (1751-1835)

I, Saml Blackburn of the county of Bath & Commonwealth of Virginia in anticipation of the lot common to humanity on this first day of June in the year of our Lord, 1830, do make and publish this my last will and testament entirely written by my own hand and sealed with my seal the day and year aforesaid.

S. Blackburn (Seal)

Hereby annulling and revoking all prior wills by me made and published. I die as I trust, a Christian, believing as I must in the doctrine of the atonement by the death, the suffering and mediation of the Lord Jesus Christ as delivered to us in the Gospels by his Evangelists and apostles, into whose hands I wish with humble confidence to commit my soul and body with all their vast concerns till it shall please Him to reanimate them in a new and I trust a highly improved mode of existence. Among the different sects of professing Christians, which have obtained in this country, I call myself a Presbyterian, not merely by descent, education or accident, but from reflection, inquiry and preference, yet I feel no inclination to shut the door of mercy against any christian denomination, whatever fault I may find with their supposed errors; who am I that I should condemn man's servant; to his own Master, let his stand or fall-----.

As to the property which it has pleased God to give me I make of it the following disposition: -

1st. My will and desire is that all my just debts be paid by my executors hereinafter named with convenient dispatch after my decease.

2nd. That all the slaves of which I may die, seized and possessed without distinction of age or sex be and they are hereby declared free and forever emancipated from all claim to future services to me, my heirs and executors or any of them, and together with their increase to the latest posterity shall be and remain clear and forever discharged from all such claims as aforesaid and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made by my Executors they shall be transported to the American Colony in Liberia and the expense of transportation be charged upon my estate real and personal. It is however expressly and explicitly understood that if any of my slaves aforesaid refuse to accept this boon it will be the duty of my executors and they are hereby requested, so to do, to sell to the highest bidder in terms of the sale all who thus refuse and pause and persevere in the refusal as slaves for life. And here let me admonish and warn those people ~~for~~ ever from that state of slavery and degradation in which I found them and in which many of them have long served me. ~~how~~ they let slip this golden moment of emancipating themselves and their posterity ---

3rd. I give and bequeath to my nephew Samuel Blackburn, Junior, son of Archibald Blackburn, to him and his heirs forever all that tract or parcels of land originally purchased by me from Robert Douthat and of Record in Bath County, being apart of the tract called Cloverdale and estimated at four hundred and forty-nine acres by the same more or less with all the improvements made thereover and appurtenance therewith belonging, but ~~by~~ two annual installments within the space of two years after my death the sum of one thousand dollars to fall in the residue of my estate. I also give to my said nephew Samuel Blackburn, Jr., and to his heirs Marshall's Life of Washington which from the gratitude and affection I bear to the memory of that great man and the merited confidence reposed in the fidelity of his biographer I have long determined should descend as heirlooms if I may so speak in re to this particular branch of my estate. ~~upon~~ this express condition that my said nephew Samuel Blackburn pay to my executors ---

4th. I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Ann Blackburn, my brick house and lot in the town of Staunton and County of Augusta, purchased from the heirs of Alexander McClanahan described in the plan of the said town with the improvements made thereon and all the appurtenance thereunto belonging as also a lot adjoining thereto containing by estimate one acre and fronting the lot owned by Carroll of said town, as also a tract of woodland purchased from Robert Douthat containing acres lying on or near the main road leading from Staunton to Middle River at Bells formerly, and also my undivided fifth part of the Washington Tavern in Staunton and of the out lots and woodland bought from the heirs of William Marshall connected and belonging to said purchase together with a tract of land granted to me by patent from the Government of the United States lying in the state of Ohio (Madison County) of about 825 acres to her and her heirs forever. I further give to my said wife all money or other property which she ^{or may receive} has received / from or on account of the will of her father, the late General George Mathews, or which I may receive or have received from his estate by said will on her account, together with all money or other property which having made herself, she shall have been permitted during my life to use at her discretion and for her benefit and all debts due on account of such money loaned by her. I moreover give her one choice of fifty volumes of my library, my law books and Marshall's Life of Washington, the latter being herein disposed of, excepted. I also give her my gold watch together with my kitchen and household furniture, including my plate, china, pictures and portrait by Cook.

The three tracts of land yet undisposed of lying in Bath County, taking them in order they stand on Mill Creek are, 1st, Cloverdale, the old improvement containing _____ acres conveyed to me under a decree of the Superior Court of Chancery held at Staunton; second, the tract called the John Mathews tract containing 458 acres one rood and 35 poles. The 3rd is disposed of to Sammie Blackburn is as above. The 4th as they lie on the creek and to be disposed of is called the upper or Fowler tract adjoining the land of John Fowler deceased and containing 452 acres all however originally belonging to a large tract called Cloverdale. Now it is my will and desire that these three tracts be laid off by my executors as equally as may be respect being had to quantity and quality and sold by them payable in such installments as they in their discretion may think most advantageous to the Estate, which being done the proceeds of the sale are hereby directed to be equally distributed by my executors among all my nephews and nieces, I mean the children of my own brothers and sisters, that is such of them as may be alive at the time of my death. The Brick House and lot purchased of Mathew B. Truss in the town of Staunton and County of Augusta together with a lot supposed to contain half an acre and lying in that part of said town called New Town also purchased of the said Mathew will also be sold by my executors and thrown into the common fund for equal distribution among my nephews and nieces that is such as of them as may be living at the time of my death.

I give to my oldest and now only surviving brother Benjamin Blackburn, should he survive me and only on that event, three hundred dollars, otherwise this legacy shall fall into the residue of my estate and be equally divided as aforesaid-- To my nephew, John Blackburn, son of the said Benjamin, I give a horse and saddle worth one hundred and twenty dollars for a colt left by him in my possession in addition to what he otherwise is entitled to--To my nephew, Colonel Robert Bay, son of my sister Elizabeth Bay, wife of Thomas Bay deceased, my law library being a professional man that is such as in the opinion of my executor pre-eminently claim that character in addition to what he may be entitled to from the division aforesaid--To my nephew the Reverend Gideon Blackburn, son of my brother Robert Blackburn to him and his heirs I give the balance of my library (these books were sold and money turned over to Dr. Blackburn's widow--$84.66. W.A.C.) not herein specifically disposed of containing about _____ volumes, in addition to what share otherwise be entitled to on the division aforesaid on the further condition that he survives me, otherwise this legacy shall lapse and the library be sold by my executors and subjected to the terms of the division aforesaid.--To my nephew Samuel Blackburn, son of my brother Robert Blackburn, I give the sum of three hundred dollars in remuneration for his expenses in returning to the State of Tennessee from Virginia, of which I suppose he has remuneration in writing, this is also addition to his claim under the said division and in full of all claims whatever.--To the Bible Society in Staunton, its present officers and their successors, I give five hundred dollars to be disposed of in such manner as their discretion may deem most likely to subserve the laudable intention of the State or of the United States to supply all destitute families with the Holy Scriptures.--To my nephew Samuel Blackburn aforesaid, I give my sword, my rifle barrellled, silver mounted pistol. My hunting rifle and two imported shot guns the larger and the lesser with all the accoutrements whereunto belonging and are intended to descend with that part of my estate herein devised to him without any deduction on that account. The disposition made in this my will in favor of deserved well-beloved wife Ann Blackburn being liberal and as believed ample were intended as a bar in lieu of dower in the balance of my real estate, yet it is my desire if my said wife should survive me, and wishes to remove to Staunton or elsewhere that my executor pay her annually in lieu of dower on the wilderness plantation the sum of two hundred dollars during her natural life--Amongst the debts herein recognized and directed to be paid with lawful interest is oneto Mrs. Jane Telfair, a loan say of three hundred dollars on which I am entitled to a credit of two hundred dollars for two very fine animals, one horse and a mare, furnished to her son, Dr. Isaac Telfair perhaps soon after his return from sea the last when removing to the state of Ohio. To Dr. Isaac Telfair, my wife's nephew, I give and bequeath the sum of five hundred dollars being well assured from the arrangements herein made he will possess a much greater portion of my estate than any of my own relations, Samuel Blackburn excepted, who has superintended my business for many years. To Mrs. Ann E. Lilly, the wife of Dr. Robert Lilly of Ohio and my wife's niece, I give and bequeath the sum of five hundred dollars. I give and bequeath to John H. Peyton, Esquire, provided he undertakes the execution of my will five hundred dollars in addition to his lawful commission.

The Residue of my estate of every description not herein otherwise disposed of as from any cause shall fail to pass in pursuance of the devises and bequeaths aforesaid, I give to my nephews and nieces, that is to such of them as may be alive at the time of my death, to be equally divided amongst them. As the acceptance or rejection of the freedom now offered is to seal the fate of such of my unfortunate people who do reject it and that of their posterity in a state of most hopeless and degrading slavery for perhaps centuries to come, or to restore to their country the land of their fathers from which they have long been exiled such of them as may accept it enrolling them in the ranks of men and citizens from which they have long been expelled, my executors will excuse me when I entreat, they will see this great question fairly put and freely answered uninfluenced by promise or hope of reward or the dread of punishment, and that the names of those who refuse to accept, should such be found, be registered which when certified by my executors to be correct will be entered of Record in Bath County with this last will and testament.

I do hereby constitute and appoint my beloved wife Ann Blackburn executrix my aforesaid friend John H. Peyton and Samuel Blackburn, Junior, son of Archibald, Executors of this my last will and testament.

S. Blackburn.

Signed sealed and published in presence of the foregoing will of Samuel Blackburn was read to him and by him acknowledged in our presence, who have at his request and in his presence and in the presence of each other witnessed the same which consists of several sheets paged from No. 1 to No. 7.

The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem is one of the most important and interesting in the history of science. The author discusses the various theories of the origin of life, and shows that the most probable one is the theory of spontaneous generation. This theory states that life originated from non-living matter, and that it has since developed into the various forms of life that we see today. The author also discusses the evidence for this theory, and shows that it is supported by a large number of facts.

The second part of the paper is devoted to a detailed discussion of the theory of spontaneous generation. The author shows that this theory is based on the fact that life is everywhere, and that it is impossible to find a place where life does not exist. He also shows that the theory is supported by the fact that life can be created from non-living matter in the laboratory. The author discusses the various experiments that have been conducted to test the theory, and shows that they all support it. He also discusses the various objections to the theory, and shows that they are all unfounded.

The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the evidence for the theory of spontaneous generation. The author shows that there is a large amount of evidence in support of the theory, and that it is the most probable one. He discusses the various facts that support the theory, and shows that they are all consistent with it. He also discusses the various objections to the theory, and shows that they are all unfounded. The author concludes that the theory of spontaneous generation is the most probable one, and that it is supported by a large amount of evidence.

The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the implications of the theory of spontaneous generation. The author shows that the theory has important implications for our understanding of the origin of life, and for the development of life on Earth. He discusses the various implications of the theory, and shows that they are all important. He concludes that the theory of spontaneous generation is the most probable one, and that it is supported by a large amount of evidence.

Whereas I Samuel Blackburn of Bath County and State of Virginia in the year 1830 made my last will and testament, in which said will I have emancipated and set free all my slaves at my death with a proviso that they should go to the colony of Liberia and that if they or any of them refused to go they are to be sold by my executors as slaves, and whereas I didn't express in what way they are to be sold to my satisfaction, I do therefore now certify make known and request that it is my earnest wish, desire and will that my executors or administrators do not sell them separately, but that they sell them in families and at private sale to such masters or mistresses, on such terms as they may think most advantageous. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 30th day of October 1834.

The Blackburn - Mathews Relationship

Due to the intermarriage of a number of the Blackburns and Mathews, and the mooted question of the parentage of Jane (Janet) Mathews (1747-1818) who married John Blackburn (1740-1808) in Frederick County, Va., on April 2, 1765; it is cogent to this narrative to present what we have learned concerning the early settlement of the Blackburn and Mathews families and to state the reasons for our belief that Janet Mathews was the daughter of Alexander and Grizella Mathews. For the greater part of our information, we are indebted to Miss. I. C. Vandevanter of Kansas City, Mo., who has published a book on the Mathews Family and is an authority on that line.

"JOHN MATHEWS, GENTLEMAN" was one of the first settlers in 1737 in the Borden Tract in lower Augusta County, Va. John Mathews married Anne Archer, the daughter of Sampson Archer, "a fellor emigrant". From different sources we have three lists of the names of the children of John and Anne Mathews (note the discrepancy in names, order and number.)

I	II	III
1) John Mathews, Jr	1) William	1) Archer - - md. Letitia
2) Joshua	2) Richard	2) Elizabeth - md. Isaac Otey, 1789
3) Richard	3) James	3) Daniel - - md. Esther Shaw
4) Sampson	4) John	4) George - - md. Ann Paul

*(Authority, I.C.V.)

Five of these sons were in Braddock's Defeat. Sampson and George had good records for service in the Rev. War.

George Mathews (1739-1808) who married Anne Paul is described as a short thick man, very erect, high head and florid skin; admitted no superior but George Washington; was elected Governor of Georgia in 1786 and again in 1794; was appointed Gov. of the Mississippi Territory which appointment was not confirmed; he became so angry that he donned his old army coat, sword, and 3-cornered cock hat, and rode horseback from Washington to Philadelphia to see the President about it. Said to have stamped the floor and ranted considerably until the matter was adjusted to his satisfaction. Was appointed by Pres. Madison as committee to receive the territory of Florida by force if need be to keep the British from having it. His daughter, Anna, married Gen. Samuel Blackburn.

The will of John Mathews, Sr., was probated 3-22-1764. He had a land-grant of 1600 acres on Mill Creek of the James River, received in 1739.

ALEXANDER MATHEWS (supposed to be a brother of John) is said to have come over from Antrim, Ulster, Ireland, about 1740 with the Doak Family; stopped first in West Nottingham County, Penna.; then sometime prior to 1746 moved southwest into Virginia and settled on Flint Creek a tributary of the Shenandoah River about 7 miles south of the present town of Front Royal, Va. Due to the shifting county lines, records of the Mathews family are found in the counties of Augusta, Frederick, Shanandoah and finally in Warren County. In 1749 Alexander Mathews received a grant of 400 acres from Lord Fairfax: TO WIT: ----

The first census list made in Shanandoah County in 1783 gives: Alexander Mathews a family of 3; his son James, family of 7; his son John, family of 6. That same year Alexander Mathews drew up the following will: --

IN THE NAME OF GOD, Amen, I Alexander Mathes of Shanendoh County and Colony of Virginia, considering the mortality of my body and that it is appointed for all men once to die, Do think it proper to leave my temporal affairs in as settled a manner as I can, and for this purpose I make alast will and testament; and being of a sound mind and memory, I first of all recommend my soul to God who gave it, with an humble Resignation; and my body to the Earth to be buried in a desent and Christian like manner; I will as followeth viz:

Expence That all my just debts and funeral charges be first paid and satisfied.

Item. I give and bequeth to my beloved sons James and John to them their heirs and assigns forever, that Tract of Land whereon they now live, to be divided in this manner, by a line that is already Run beginning at a whiteoak marked thus AM on the North line or side; thence South some degrees west to the back line near the Bruchey Mountain; containing 132 acres each less or more.

The first part of the report is devoted to a general description of the project and its objectives. It is followed by a detailed account of the work done during the year, including a list of the publications and reports produced. The third part of the report is a summary of the results of the work, and the fourth part is a list of the names of the persons who have contributed to the work.

The work has been carried out in accordance with the programme of work approved by the Council of the Institute. It has been supported by the Government of the United Kingdom, and by the Government of the Republic of India. The work has been carried out in the Department of Physics, University of Cambridge, and in the Department of Physics, University of Madras.

It was in the fall of 1783 or the following year, that Alexander, Jr., Jerimiah; and George (sons of Alexander, Sr.) and possibly their sister Nancy (Mathews) Nelson, wife of John Nelson, left their home in Shanandoah County and moved to eastern Tenn. Alexander Mathes, Jr., and John Nelson settled at Limestone, Tenn. adjacent to Martin Academy, where Alexander Mathes became especially active in the interests of Martin Academy and Salem Presbyterian Church. Jerimiah and George went on further southwest and stopped in Jefferson County. There Jerimiah became a Justice of Peace and lived some 4 miles west of Dandridge. His house was still standing in 1940, and was pointed out as the place where the first session of the Court was held on June 11, 1793 at which meeting John Blackburn was also present as one of the presiding magistrates. (Ramsey, pp 576).

Mr. Wm. A. Lyle of Dandridge, Tenn., now deceased, told the writer that there were four Mathews brothers who settled in eastern Tenn., and that before they left their Virginian home and their father and other brothers, they changed the spelling of their name by dropping the "w", in order that their descendants might know each other." To this change in the spelling of the family name the father, Alexander Mathes, Sr., must have agreed as we note in the Land Grant it is spelled "Mathews" in 1749 and in the will in 1783 spelled "Mathes". The contemporaneous execution of the will and the departure of the brothers for the frontier seems to have a definite connection and indicates a complete family agreement upon the future spelling of the name. The fact that no daughter is mentioned in the Will does not necessarily indicate that there were no daughters; for we recall that it was the custom in that day to give to the daughter her "dot" or inheritance at the time of her marriage and departure from the family circle. We think there were at least these two daughters - Janet who married John Blackburn in 1765 and Nancy who married John Nelson. At the time of the execution of the will (1783) Janet (Mathews) Blackburn was living on Beaver Creek some 300 miles southwest in Washington County, Va., where her husband had settled some ten years previously, and any communications between the two families must have been rare. We can imagine how heartily she must have welcomed the coming of her brothers and sister, Nancy, to the southwest country, and how that fall or the following summer of 1784 the Blackburns accompanied the Mathes on down into Jefferson County, which became their permanent home.

No authentic authority has been found which states that Janet Mathews was the daughter of Alexander and Grizella Mathews. However in support of our belief of that relationship, we present the following arguments:

1st - John & Janet Blackburn named their eldest son, "Alexander"; their second daughter, "Grizelle". The second son was called "Benjamin" and the first daughter "Mary." We know that Benjamin and Mary were the names of John's parents; is it not logical to assume that Janet would wish to show as great filial honor to her parents as was shown to her husband's? Moreover Alexander was not a common name in the Blackburn family at that date, and Grizelle certainly was a very uncommon name; therefore there must have been some very close family ties indicated in these names. (As you follow the lineage of John & Janet, I know you will be surprised at the number of Johns, James, Nancys, Alexanders and Grizelles that will appear hereafter.)

2nd - John Mathews, who is assumed by several students of the Blackburn lineage as the father of Janet, settled in 1737 on Mill Creek, a tributary of the James River some 150 miles south of Winchester, Va., where Benjamin Blackburn settled about 1746 on Mulberry Run. Alexander Mathews, however, settled on Flint Creek, only 20 or 25 miles from the home of the Blackburns; quite near enough for John to meet and court Jane - while the home of the other Janet Mathews, daughter of John & Anne Mathews was 150 miles to the south, and a long way to go courting on horseback.

3rd - George Mathes, a pioneer in Jefferson Co., N.C. (now Tenn) son of Alexander and Grizelle Mathes, and his wife Nancy (Wood) Mathes had a son, William Mathes, who in turn was the grandfather of James Harvey Mathes of Memphis, Tenn. This James Harvey Mathes in material collected by him on his lineage states that "James Blackburn was a first cousin of my grandfather, William Mathes." James Blackburn (1782-1860) who was referred to, was a son of John & Janet Blackburn; therefore that would make Janet the daughter of Alexander & Grizelle Mathes according to that authority.

4th. - In a letter received from Wm. A. Lyle of Dandridge in 1936, Mr. Lyle stated that "he had reliable information that Jane was a sister of four pioneer brothers, Alexander, Jeremiah, George and Allen Mathes." (Note: we find that Alexander has a son named Allen, but no brother by that name, - we think Mr. Lyle was in error about a fourth brother coming to Tenn.)

5th - John Nelson was a witness to the will of Archibald Blackburn in 1823: Edward Blackburn, son of John & Janet, named his eldest son "John Nelson Blackburn" which has some slight indication that John Nelson, husband of Nancy Mathes, might have been an esteemed uncle of Edward.

6th - Miss Vandeventer states that Janet Mathews, daughter of John & Anne (Archer) Mathews married Capt. Audley Paul (see pp 56).

While the above statements do not positively prove the parentage of Janet Mathews, we consider them very convincing.

The statement that Grace Mathes was born 1782 in Va. and Jeremiah was born 1784 in Tenn., gives us approximate date of the family's removal to Tenn.

13. ? "Samuel" Blackburn - ?

Benj. Blackburn, Sr., in his will executed Aug. 10, 1786 included two items: to wit: "Item: I do bequeath to each of my grandsons named Benjamin one good school Bible". "Item: I do bequeath to my son John Blackburn's son Samuel one good school Bible." In the list of twelve children given by Wm Wirt Blackburn out of the "family Bible", no mention is made of a Samuel. Since John Blackburn's son Benjamin died the year that the grandfather drew up his will, doubtless the grandfather wished to give a Bible to one of the living sons of John. We note that at that date each of his other children had a living son named Benjamin. But who was Samuel? While in Jonesboro in 1940, we took a good look at the record, and it certainly looks like "Samuel" on the record.

GRIZELLE BLACKBURN (1774-1862)

GRIZELLE BLACKBURN (1774-1862) the second daughter of John and Janet Blackburn was born near Abingdon, Washington County, Virginia, on Beaver Creek, where her parents had settled in the fall of 1773. She married her cousin Gideon Blackburn at Dandridge, Tenn., October 3, 1793.

GIDEON BLACKBURN

Was born August 27, 1772, in Augusta County, Virginia, near Steele's Tavern (present name 1941) and Providence Presbyterian Church. They were neighbors of the Steele and McCormick families (McCormick of reaper fame.) His father was Robert Blackburn, third son of Benjamin Blackburn, and Margaret Ritchie. Robert Blackburn and Margaret Ritchie were married probably at Winchester, Va., early in the year of 1766, where their eldest child, Thomas, was born, July 4, 1767. About 1769 Robert Blackburn moved down into the lower part of Augusta County and lived some five or six years near Providence Presbyterian Church and then when Gideon was about four year of age they moved down into Washington County, N. C. (now Tenn). It would appear that the family lived for a time near Bristol, Tenn., and later on the east branch of the Little Limestone creek and the Nolichucky River. At twelve years of age Gideon went to live with his grandfather, Benjamin Blackburn, who had also moved down from Augusta County, Va., and in the year 1784 purchased 200 acres about one mile south of Limestone. This move afforded Gideon the opportunity to attend Martin Academy which had been organized and taught by the Presbyterian minister, Dr. Samuel Doak, under whose tutelage Gideon received the foundation of his education. When his grandfather died about 1790, Gideon and his uncle, Gideon Ritchie, who seems to have taken a personal interest in the education of his nephew, left Limestone and went about 70 miles southwest to Dandridge, Tenn. Here Gideon Ritchie secured a military grant on the Nolichucky River, and Gideon Blackburn was taken into the home of his uncle, John Blackburn, who is spoken of as a "man of rare excellence". Gideon continued his studies under the Rev. Robert Henderson, pastor of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church at Dandridge. That meant a daily walk of five or six miles to the home of the pastor, but in those days of his youth and approach to young manhood, Gideon was no idler or "star-boarder" at his uncle's home. For a time he tended a saw mill at night and studied his Latin verbs by the light of a pine torch; he also did surveying for the early settlers, slept out in the cane breaks at night to avoid the Indians and took his pay in horses. We are told that he sold these horses in Knoxville and on the proceeds attended Dickson College in Penn. Dr. Silas E. Henry writes that in his youth an uncle pointed out to him a ravine near the Blackburn home to which Gideon was wont to retreat for secret prayer. In 1792 Gideon was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in the Hopewell Presbyterian Church at Dandridge... It is stated that he immediately set out with a company of soldiers who were visiting the forts in the surrounding territory. With Bible and rifle in hand he accompanied them, preaching to them on the Sabbath and taking part in their campaigns against the hostile Cherokees. From certain references we are led to believe that on some occasions, he was in command of the troops. It is quite certain that in his youth

Gideon Blackburn had a definite inclination toward a military career. An erect military carriage marked his bearing throughout life. His ability to lead and influence men would have carried him far in such a vocation. In those contacts with the Cherokee Indians, he was convinced that the only solution for a permanent and enduring peace with the Indians lay in the leading of them to accept a Christian faith and the ways of the white man's civilization; therefore as soon as peace was established with the Indians, Gideon Blackburn appeared before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Philadelphia in 1801 and in an ardent plea for the Indians carried the Assembly by the eloquence and enthusiasm of his appeal and was appointed by the General Assembly as Missionary to the Cherokees. He set about at once to establish schools among the Cherokees. He taught them not only in spiritual matters but also how to farm their lands with plows, to build roads; while his wife instructed the girls in sewing and domestic arts. In October 1793, shortly after he was ordained to the ministry, he married his cousin, Grizelle Blackburn, daughter of John Blackburn. He made a settlement at Craig's Fort where Maryville is now located. He built two log cabins - one for a home, and the other to serve as a school and a church. He became pastor of New Providence and Eusebia Churches, which he served until he moved to central Tennessee in 1810. His labors as pastor of these two congregations were interspersed with extensive trips on horseback throughout the settlements in eastern Tennessee and northern Alabama organizing churches and preaching to the people wherever he could get a number of the pioneers together. The writer has in his possession Dr. Blackburn's laconic diary in which he notes the number in attendance at his meetings, children baptised, response of the people to his message and some comment on the character of the land. Under the strenuous demands of his labors as pastor of two churches, leader of camp meetings, itinery preacher to the outlying settlements, and missionary to the Indians his strength and constitutional vigor were taxed to the limit. His chief "thorn in the flesh" was a lameness in one leg caused by the fracture of his hip in early youth. This resulted in a permanent injury from which he never fully recovered and affected his walk so that he always had a slight limp in his gait, and at times brought on a swelling from which he suffered great agony. When unable to ride his horse, he made for his journeys a two wheeled cart, in which he assayed to make his trips, but in places the state of the roads made even the use of a wheeled cart impossible. At these places, he would dismount from the cart and with the leading strap of his horse in his teeth proceed on crutches over the obstacle. Such was the perseverance and determination of this pioneer minister and missionary; it is no surprise that in 1810 his health broke down completely and he had to give up his favorite work among the Indians and seek a field of less strenuous labor. The affliction in his leg never fully left him. The writer's mother told him that she remembered Dr. Blackburn in the pulpit sitting on a chair with his afflicted leg resting on a cushion while he preached with his usual vigor and eloquence. He left eastern Tennessee and moved first to Manry County, then to Franklin, Tenn., where in 1811 he took charge of Harpeth Academy and served as pastor of five churches in that vicinity. He was wont to mount his horse and set out Friday evening for his appointment; often preaching on Saturday and twice on Sunday and be back for his classes on Monday morning. During his residence at Franklin he made many trips throughout Tennessee, Kentucky and even into Illinois and Missouri. A record is left of a visit in St. Louis in 1816. In 1823 Dr. Blackburn took charge of the Presbyterian Church at Louisville, Ky. While pastor at that place he organized a church and a school at Goshen, Ky, of which his eldest son, Rev. John N. Blackburn, was in charge until the latter's death in 1838. In 1826 Dr. Blackburn became President of Center College, but only remained there for about three years. The probable reason for his resignation as President of Center College was due to conflict with the Trustees over his views concerning a gradual emancipation of the slaves. We find that he took charge of the Presbyterian Church at Versailles, Ky, in 1828 and remained there until he moved to Illinois in the fall of 1833. In the Spring of 1833 he made a trip to Macoupin County, Illinois, where in March 1833 he took up about 600 acres of Government land in Chesterfield Township. He returned to Kentucky and made arrangements to move his family to this new country. Before he set out for Illinois, he freed his slaves; of whom two came along as his hired servants. The bonds of their freedom are to be found on record in the Court House at Carlinville, Illinois. The limited space we have allotted to this sketch will not permit us to enter into the narrative of the sympathy extended by women of the Kentucky home to the Blackburn ladies on leaving "civilization and going into the wilds of a frontier", nor of the crudeness of their first home on the banks of the Macoupin Creek in Illinois, but suffice it to say that they only stayed about a year in the log cabins in the Chesterfield Township until Dr. Blackburn bought 500 acres on the east side of Carlinville, the county seat of Macoupin County and moved there in the fall of 1834 or early in 1835. Dr. Blackburn was made a trustee of the Congregational College at Jacksonville, Ill. that year and also became financial agent for the school. Due doubtless to the fact that Illinois College by their charter of 1829 was limited in the amount and kind of Biblical Instruction they could give, Dr. Blackburn conceived the plan of establishing a Presbyterian institution of learning at Carlinville, the State Legislature in the meanwhile having taken a more liberal attitude toward religious teaching. Therefore he approached his friends in the east with the proposition that if they would buy Illinois land at $2.00 per acre, he would act as their agent and buy the land at $1.25 per acre, set aside 50¢ per acre for a Presbyterian Institution of learning and reimburse himself for his labor and expenses out of the balance of 25¢ per acre. By this means he was able in 1837 to deed over to a Board of Trustees the title to over 16,000 acres of land in Macoupin, Madison, Montgomery and Sangamon Counties, for the establishment of the College at Carlinville, Illinois.

Dr. Blackburn is known chiefly for his eloquence as a pulpit orator. Besides his zeal for Indian missions and ministry to the people of the frontier, he devoted much of his energy to the establishment of Presbyterian churches in Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois, and the preparation of young men of promise for the service of the Presbyterian ministry. He frequently had young men in his home under his instruction for the ministry for months at a time. On one occasion he passed by a negro service and heard a young slave addressing his race. Dr. Blackburn was so impressed with his apparent ability, that he sought out his master and purchased him and took him into his own home and trained him for the ministry, then gave him his freedom and sent him to Philadelphia where he and his sons became effective workers among their people in that city.

Tall of stature, of military carriage, dramatic in delivery, possessed of a melodious silver-toned voice, with facial expression and brilliant eye following every passionate phase of his theme, he captivated his hearers. He excelled in the power to dramatize his subject with vivid word-pictures and imagery, so that people thronged to hear him and forgot time and fatigue under the spell of his eloquence even though he was wont to speak for two hours at a stretch. In the fall of 1837 when the opposition to the publishing of a paper in Alton, Illinois, by the Rev. Elijah F. Lovejoy, a Presbyterian minister, advocating abolition of slavery, was at its height, Dr. Blackburn was present at a meeting of the supporters of Lovejoy's press and was made chairman of the meeting. We gather from several sources that Dr. Blackburn did not approve of the violent acts of either side of the controversy, but was a thorough supporter of the "freedom of the press". The writer has a copy of a letter written by a Mr. Buchanan of Carlinville to Rev. Hurlburt of Alton, in which he cautions the latter not to count too heavily on Dr. Blackburn's support on the cause of abolition, but states that Blackburn's interests lay more in the maintenance of the freedom of the press.

Due to a cancer on his face that assumed malignant proportions and the chronic hip-trouble that at times caused him severe pain, his latter years were years of suffering. In the winter of 1837-1838 a fall upon the ice caused a fracture of his hip, he was confined to his bed often in great pain. His son, Anderson, left record that once in the delirium of his suffering he sat up in bed and imagining himself again before the throngs that gathered to hear him in his prime, he preached one of the most eloquent sermons he ever heard his father preach on the text, "Why will ye die, oh house of Israel", (Ezek. 18:31). "His only prayer was for patience and resignation to enable him to wait the Lord's time to take him home. Mostly his mind was clear and his hopes were always bright. No cloud seemed to dim his mind. He only longed to go home." He died August 23, 1838. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Allen of Huntsville, Ala. He was buried in the Goode graveyard (now called the Cook Addition of the Cemetery) in Carlinville, Ill. The exact spot of his original interment is not known to the present generation. Dr. Duncan McMillan, graduate of Blackburn University in 1870 and well-known Presbyterian divine, in a letter to the writer, said that he remembered seeing Dr. Blackburn's grave on this tract in 1856. The City Cemetery was laid off in 1851 and when Mrs. Gideon Blackburn died in 1862, she was buried in this part. About 1870 the Trustees of Blackburn University, according to their minutes, requested the heirs of Dr. Blackburn to permit them to remove the bodies of Dr. Blackburn, his wife and son Gideon to the College Campus and there they would set up an appropriate monument to his memory. This proposition was apparently rejected. They then proposed buying the lot on which Mrs. Blackburn was buried and asked permission to remove the remains of Dr. Blackburn and his son Gideon to said lot and there erect a monument to their memory. For some reason this lingered in committee for two or three years and the record does not definitely state just what action was finally taken. Whether the family objected to the act of disturbing the grave of Dr. Blackburn, or whether after the lapse of some 25 years they could not find any remains, lies in doubt. They did however erect a monument which may today be seen in the Carlinville City Cemetery. Along the east side thereof three mounds were visible - apparently locating three graves. At our request, the sexton of said cemetery dug a shallow ditch across the same, and definitely proved to our satisfaction that there was only one grave there. However the remains of Dr. Blackburn and his son may have been placed in Mrs. Blackburn's grave or they might have been put under the monument. There is no one alive today who can clear up this mystery for us.

The likeness that has been left to us of Dr. Blackburn was gained by stealth. His friends had often appealed to him to have a portrait made, but he thought such an act to be forbidden by the Second Commandment and to be an undue display of personal pride. However a lady in Boston determined to have a portrait and invited the Doctor to call on several afternoons and engaged him in his favorite theme concerning the cause of the Cherokee Missions; meanwhile she had a portrait painter behind a curtain taking off the Doctor's likeness. It is said that when he found out the deceit that had been practiced on him, that he was very angry and harshly condemned the betrayers of his trust, but later became reconciled to the deed and forgave the lady. During the last years of his life one sorrow after another fell upon him. His favorite son, James, died at Maryville College while preparing for the ministry; his daughter Nancy Glorian was taken by death on the threshold of young womanhood; his son-in-law the Rev. John T. Hamilton, died shortly before they came to Illinois; his son, the Rev. Samuel Blackburn, died in 1835 while on a trip to Kentucky to visit his wife's people and was buried at Shawneetown; his son Gideon died in 1837, aged 21 years, and his eldest son, the Rev. John N. Blackburn, pastor at Goshen, Ky., died in early part of 1838. One can sympathize and excuse the aged father in the sufferings of his latter days, if at times he called in question his own acts and thought perhaps the Lord was punishing him. One thing that seemed to rise and trouble him was the question whether he sinned by marrying his own cousin. That fact came to me from two widely different sources, and seems to be quite authentic.

Dr. Blackburn died intestate. His estate was estimated to exceed $45,000.00. He was probably the wealthiest man in Macoupin County at the time of his death. It is said that Dr. Blackburn had drawn up a will, that was particularly favorable to his youngest son, A. M. Blackburn, but failed to sign or have the same properly witnessed, and therefore did not serve in the distribution of his estate. We understand that the heirs of said A. M. Blackburn still have this will in their possession

Biographical:

BENJAMIN ARDRE BLACKBURN, the eldest son of John Blackburn, II, and Elizabeth McGirk, was born June 8, 1805, on their farm on Long Creek, 5½ miles northeast of Dandridge, Tenn. He attended the neighborhood subscription school, and grew up in the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, in which his father and grandfather had been elders and in which he also later became an elder and church treasurer. He was a man of strong character, honest, upright, fearless and deeply religious. One of the beautiful things about him was his devotion to his wife, Isabelle Caldwell, whom he married Feb. 19, 1827. She had grown up with him in the Hopewell Church and was always the queen of his heart and the inspiration of his life. Isabelle is described by her grandson, the Rev. Dr. S. E. Henry to whom we are indebted for the facts of this biography, as "a beautiful woman, winsome and attractive." Benjamin and Isabelle were the parents of twelve children, three of whom died in infancy. We have listed the names of ten on the foregoing pages and what information we have concerning their families. Reverend Dr. Henry gives us a very interesting incident in the life of Benjamin A. Blackburn.

"When the Civil War broke out my grandfather Blackburn was a very strong Union man. Tho he was a southern gentleman of the old school, and liked the southern way of life, he loved the United States as a Union better than he loved the South as a section, so he took his stand on the side of the Union. All his brothers and at least two of his sisters threw their influence into the Southern Cause. This caused a break between him and his brothers and sisters. But true to his colors he unfurled a large United States flag from the top of a tall white pine tree that stood in his front yard. East Tennessee was the battle ground between the contending forces and the region frequently changed masters. It was no safe place for a Union man to unfurl his flag. Toward the close of the war, in a running fight between a small company of Federal soldiers and a small force of Confederate soldiers in a meadow just south of the Blackburn home, the Confederates drove the Federal soldiers off and as some of the younger Confederates were returning to camp from the skirmish they saw my grandfather's flag floating from the top of his big pine tree. They halted in front of the house and ordered him to have the flag taken down. He refused and said it was the flag of his country and it would not be taken down except over his dead body. They replied, "If that is the way you feel about it, we will hang you under it." He answered, "I can't keep you from doing that." They placed a rope around his neck. He asked for the privilege of having prayers with his family. His request was granted. He read a chapter from the Bible and all knelt in prayer. His prayers were never short and on this occasion he saw no need of making an exception. After a while one of the gang said, "Cut it short, old man, cut it short." When he had finished praying, he arose and said "I am ready". They took him out to the tree, threw a rope over a limb and pulled him off the ground, then let him down and demanded that he lower the flag, but he refused. Again they pulled him up and again let him down and for a third time demanded that he take down the flag. Again he said "No". A third time they pulled him up and almost kept him up too long. He was nearly dead when they let him down. Just then an officer rode up and saw what the young fellows were up to and ordered them to cease persecuting the old man. They replied that they were just trying to make him take his flag down. To this the officer said: "If the old fool thinks so much of his damned rag let him keep it there." So the flag was left floating in the air, but my grandfather never could stand anything with gray in it after that. Sometimes when he would speak bitterly of the "Rebells", grandmother would say, "Now, now, Benjamin, I wouldn't talk like that". And he would reply, "Yes, yes, Ibby, but you were never hanged."

This is a correct account of the incident as my mother often told it to me in later years. I repeated this incident in the presence of an older cousin, Mrs. Rose Eckel, Knoxville, Tenn., recently, (1940). She remarked that she was present in my grandfather's home when the incident happened and that my narrative is correct."

WILLIAM WIRT BLACKBURN, son of Benjamin and Isabelle Blackburn, was born April 9, 1838. In eastern Tennessee during the Civil War every young man was compelled to take an active part or "hide out" when the opposing forces were in command of the neighborhood. William Wirt was in sympathy with the cause of the Union. With others he determined to enlist in the Federal Army. They were compelled to walk by night to Lexington, Ky., to carry out their purpose. He became a Lieutenant in the 9th Tenn. Cavalry, Co. C. He was in the siege of Knoxville, at Fort Sanders, where thousands of the Confederates were killed, was in the battles of Cumberland Gap and Morristown, Tenn. He was in a number of very close places but came through without a scratch. As outlined above, he was married twice, having two sons by his first wife, and four sons and seven daughters by the second wife. He was a member of the Hopewell Presb. Church of which he was an elder and a clerk of the Session for many years. As commissioner from Union Presbytery he attended the General Assembly at Philadelphia. He was an outstanding citizen and a prosperous farmer. He died in 1915

Because of its special reference to family history, we include a copy of a letter by William Wirt Blackburn:

Dandridge, Tenn.
April 20, 1909

Senator J.K.P. Blackburn
Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Sir:

I am very glad to make your acquaintance. I have been reading of your proceedings in the Senate and wondering if you are a relative of mine, and it seems that you are. Gideon Blackburn, that you spoke of, was a great Uncle of mine by marriage. He married Griselda Blackburn, who was a great aunt of mine, also his first cousin. My great grandfather partly raised him; he worked on the farm by day and studied by pine knot by night and went 8 miles to recite to old Dr. Henderson, I think it was, who lived below Dandridge.

My great great grandfather's name was William(*) as near as we can tell; he came from Scotland and settled in Rockbridge County, Virginia. He had two sons, Samuel was a General in the Revolutionary War and was a very eminent lawyer, but as we have it had no children. John B. was the second son and my great grandfather, he raised Gideon Blackburn. He came from Rockbridge Co., Va. and settled in Jefferson Co., 6 miles east of Dandridge on Long Creek, was the first Justice of the Peace in Jeff. Co., and an elder in the Presbyterian Church. You thought there were 4 sons but I was under the impression that there were only two. Here is the record of my great grandfather's family taken from his Family Bible, which I have in my possession.

John Blackburn and Jenat Mathis were married April 2, 1765. Their children:

Alexander Blackburn was born Jan. 14, 1766 - killed by the Indians.

(John was my grandfather)

Copied from the family record by W W. Blackburn

Benjamin Ardery, oldest son of John, was my father. He died the 20th day of Sept. 1877, aged 72. He had 4 sons and 8 daughters, only two sons and one daughter living. John, living near Jefferson City, Harriet Moore, Atlanta, Ga., Rev. John Moore, her son, is pastor of Presb. Church there. Four of my father's grandsons are Presby. Preachers. Andrew was 3rd son of my grandfather's, had 1 son and 1 daughter who died in Live Oak, Fla. His son Henry is a merchant and lives in Live Oak, Fla. Henry has a large family of fine people.

Gideon H. Blackburn, 3rd son, lives at Coal Creek, Tenn., married in Va., is 80 yrs old and has no children. Mac never married, died in Ga. We have 6 sons and 7 daughters, 7 children married. I was 71 years old, the 9th of April. If you write to Rev. Geo. Blackburn of Columbia, S. C., I think you will find out lots about the Blackburn Family. He was here some time ago and was getting up a history of the Blackburn Family and was going to get it put into book form and said he would send me a copy, but I have not received it yet. He has gone to quite a good deal of pains to get it up. He is a brother of Rev. Asa Blackburn, who is pastor of the Stranger's Church, N.Y.; they are sons of the Rev. John Nelson Blackburn, son of my uncle

Edward Blackburn.

I want to congratulate you on the part you took in State-wide Prohibition. Thought you were made of the right material. I would like to hear from you again. I hope you will succeed in tracing your family history. Wish I could help you more. I always have taken great interest in my father's ancestors.

I would be glad if you would use your influence for the New Charter Bill for Greater Knoxville.

Very respectfully yours,
William Wirt Blackburn

*NOTE by WAC. He is in error about William being his great great grandfather; the will of Benjamin Blackburn, found elsewhere in these papers proves without doubt that Benjamin was his great great grandfather and that he (Benj.) had at least 5 sons surviving him, namely; Benjamin, Jr., John, Robert, Archibald, and Samuel, and 2 daughters, Elizabeth and Ann.)

WILLIAM WALLACE BLACKBURN (1869-1927) was born on a farm four miles NE of Dandridge. He was the eldest son of Wm Wirt Blackburn and Harriet McSpadden. He had one full brother and thirteen half-brothers and sisters - all living in 1942 except one half-brother. At the age of 22 years he married Ida Harrison and went to live on a farm belonging to his maternal grandfather, Alvah McSpadden. They were the parents of eleven children, eight sons and three daughters. One son, Hugh, died in 1915; the other seven sons and three daughters live in eastern Tenn., near the place of their birth and are a fine lot of people. William Wallace Blackburn died Dec. 24, 1927, and was buried in the cemetery at the Hopewell Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Ida Blackburn and her three youngest children still live at the old McSpadden home, which has a history extending back over 125 years.

Among the descendants of Benj. Ardre Blackburn we note the following who became successful and influential ministers in the Presbyterian Church: John Ross Gass, Silas Edward Henry, John Henry, Jere Ardre Moore, Russell Blackburn Henry.

L. They went to live with their maternal grandfather, John Blackburn and his wife Elizabeth, at the Blackburn home. After two years the father, Wm. H. Steele, having married, decided to take the boys with him to the wilds of Missouri. This was too much for the grandparents who locked the children in to prevent the father from taking them. The father however took them by writ of Habeas Corpus and first settled at McGirk, Moniteau Co., Mo.; afterward moved to Cooper Co; where their stepmother having died and their father having married the third wife, the boys left their paternal home and made their own way working for farmers.

(Andrew Alonzo Blackburn, sixth child of John and Elizabeth McGirk Blackburn was born May 18, 1814, died July 13, 1891; married on Oct 22, 1839 Isabelle Lowery Blackburn (born Dec. 1823, died May 4, 1844, "aged 20 yr, 4 mo 25 d") Isabelle was a first or second cousin of her husband-according to data from her grandchildren. ("Her mother was Nancy J. Blackburn, who died Dec. 24, 1839, aged 47 yrs 5 mo.") We see from the above dates that Andrew was 25 yrs old and Isabelle 16 yrs at the date of their marriage. We have never been able to locate Isabelle on the Blackburn Family Tree. She is reported to have been a "granddaughter of one of the McGirk sisters". We suspect that she was the daughter of John Blackburn, son of Andrew and Catherine McGirk Blackburn, who "was married Sept. 22, 1822" - we have never been able to learn the name of John's wife; could it have been Nancy J. Lowery? Andrew married the second time to Ellen Elizabeth Dick of New Market, Tenn., on Dec. 26, 1848. Andrew started out as a farmer, but about 1850 opened a mercantile establishment in New Market, Tenn., with his younger brother, Mack. During the Civil War his sympathies were with the Southern Cause and that sympathy cost him the loss of his business, so at the close of the War he moved first to Georgia and then to Florida where he located on the Sewanee River at Live Oak. Here he conducted a farm and also opened a store in the new town of Live Oak, which under the supervision of his son, Henry, became an enterprising business. He was instrumental in erecting a Presbyterian Church in the town and was the first elder of the church and continued in that office until his death. He was a fine Christian gentleman and a most highly respected citizen, much loved and fondly spoken of by his grandchildren. His son, Henry, followed in his footsteps, was a successful business man, honored by his fellow citizens and active elder in the Presbyterian Church for many years. Henry spent the last six years of his life in Tampa, Florida. Andrew and his wife, Ellen; his daughter, Charlotte, and her husband Julius Allen and his brother Mack Blackburn are all buried at Live Oak, Fla.

(Gideon H. Blackburn, b. 1829 - died ab. 1910; m. Margaret Britton, was a soldier in C.S.A. - after war opened a store at Coal City, Tenn; was deeply religious; built with his own funds a small Presbyterian Church; was for some time its only ruling elder; never had any children; left his wife well-provided and left a nice sum for the support of the church, to which he contributed $500 annually during his life time.

(Nancy Eliza Blackburn, b. ab. 1831; "was a proud lady, very fond of clothes, fastidious in her appearance, came into the room with an air of a grand lady, lived in the brick home her grandfather had built soon after the close of the Rev. War on the land he received from the State of No. Carolina for his services; she married late in life, John Clark, a widower; was waited on by a colored woman named Jennie who had been a slave in her father's family. Her sympathies were wholly with the south. She was never "reconstructed"; was Confederate to the end had no children." (S.E. Henry) (Mathias M. (Mack) Blackburn, born ab. 1833, bachelor, "attended Maryville College in pre-war days, from which institution he graduated about 1850; taught in an academy in Brooklyn, Ala., for a number of years; in 1856 joined his brother Andrew at New Market, Tenn., where they operated a store; when the Civil War came on he went to N. C. and became a teacher once more; after the Civil War he went with his brother, Andrew, to Georgia, then to Live Oaks, Fla., where he opened a Law office, became a state Legislator, left a record for honesty and straightforwardness; was called "Judge" in his later years - whether honorary title or because of office uncertain. He never married. He left three small diaries which are very interesting because of their human point of view. In these diaries he speaks of his trips to Brooklyn, Ala.; of the country and the people; of a girl in New Market whom he evidently expected to marry, but something occurred at the beginning of the Civil War that separated them - he broken-hearted - they see no more of each other until after the War when they meet again in Georgia - but for some reason they never married. His three diaries are tied up with a fourth diary written by the girl that he loved but never married. They are in possession of a great niece by marriage, Mrs. Allen of Lake Wales, Fla." (S.E.H.)

JANE BLACKBURN (1780-1840?)

JANE BLACKBURN, was the third daughter of John and Janet Blackburn, She was a twin of Edward and was born June 3, 1780 while the family still resided on Beaver Creek in Washington County, Va., near Abingdon. In the 24th year of her age she married (Sept 6, 1804) Thos H. Snoddy, a prominent citizen of Dandridge, Tenn. It would appear that Jane was his third wife. Mr. Snoddy had several children; one son, named James Snoddy may have been Jane's son, but we are not certain whether Jane had any children. Her mother Janet Blackburn, in a letter to her daughters in 1813 speaks of "Thomas Snoddy and family" and of a son James, who injured his knee in a foot race. According to a letter written by her brother James to his sisters in Illinois in 1846, Jane and Thomas were both dead at that date.

EDWARD BLACKBURN (1780-1853)

EDWARD BLACKBURN was the seventh son of John & Janet Blackburn. He was a twin of Jane and was born Jan. 5, 1780. He died Sept 26, 1853 having spent his entire life-time in the vicinity of Dandridge. On Sept. 5, 1804, he secured a license to marry Margaret ("Peggy") McGirk. On the following day, Sept. 6, 1804, Thos H. Snoddy secured a licence to marry his twin sister, Jane Blackburn. We wonder if there was a double wedding? According to the date we took off of the stone in the Dandridge Cemetery, Peggy McGirk was born Oct. 19, 1772. Could we have mis-read the inscription? That would have made her eight years older than her husband and would have placed the year of her birth the same as that of her sister, Catherine McGirk, who married Andrew Blackburn, April 23, 1802. Peggy died Oct. 1, 1850. Edward and Peggy are buried up on the hill in the second cemetery of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, of which Edward was a ruling elder for a number of years. Of him his grandson, the Rev. W. E. Caldwell, has this to say: "Grandfather Blackburn seemed to me as near a perfect model of a man as I ever have known. In all the relations of life, cheerful and affable in the family and social circle, earnest, and devout in religion."

- Edward and Peggy (McGirk) Blackburn were the parents of seven children:
1. Catherine Blackburn (1805-1849) who married James Harvey Caldwell in 1823.
 2. Cinderella Blackburn (1807-18??) who married Wm. Caldwell in 1829
 3. John Nelson Blackburn (1809-1886) who married three times.
 4. Sally Blackburn, born about 1812, who married Jos. C. Bradshaw
 5. Andrew Blackburn (date of birth unknown) who married Letitia Morrow.
 6. Margaret Blackburn (date of birth unknown) who married Thos R. Bradshaw in 1838.
 7. Wm. I. I. Blackburn (1822-1852) who married Bethiah Ann Howell in 1848.

(Catherine Blackburn, b. Aug 26, 1805, died Feb. 26, 1849; m. Jas Harvey Caldwell on Feb. 13, 1823; they were the parents of nine children -

 John Nelson Blackburn, born Sept 3, 1809; died Sept 2, 1886; became a Presbyterian minister of some note; was married three times; 1st on Feb 28, 1831 to Martha Jane Morrow (1809-1844); the 2nd wife of Rev. J.N.B. was Eliza Armbrister; the 3rd wife was Mrs. E. A. Jones.
 John Nelson married Nancy Mathews, a sister of Edward Blackburn's mother, Janet Mathews. We therefore assume that John Nelson Blackburn was a name-sake of this great uncle, John Nelson, who was living near Limestone, Tenn. in 1809.
 To John Nelson & Martha Blackburn were born three children:
 (Calvin C. Blackburn, born Feb. 26, 1832; died young.
 (Sarah P. Blackburn, born Dec. 10, 1833; married Rufus McClary. They were the parents of "six children". They lived for a time in Birmingham, Ala. We have the names of only two of the children -

Autobiography of Rev. W. E. Caldwell written at Goliad, Texas, in 1880.

Preface:

To my beloved children these recollections are especially dedicated.

This record is not of such a nature as to interest strangers. It may be interesting to loving hearts; children and brothers and sisters may find pleasure in these simple annals.

It is not fame, but affection that dictates this narrative; affection for the living that they may emulate the sterling virtues of worthy pregenitors; affection for the dead that I may in this humble record, obey the scriptures, honor my parents and ancestors, who were deserving of more honorable mention than these brief pages can give.

Maternal Grandparents:

My mother's maiden name was Catherine Blackburn; her father was Edward Blackburn. Her mother's maiden name was Margaret or Peggy McGirk.

My grandfather Blackburn was an elder in the Hopewell Presbyterian Church at Dandridge, Jefferson Co., Tenn.

My grandmother Blackburn was brought up a Baptist, but was a communicant in the Presbyterian Church with her husband.

My grandfather Blackburn was a cousin of Rev. Gideon Blackburn, a great pulpit orator of East Tenn.

Dr. Gideon Blackburn married my grandfather Blackburn's sister, whose daughter became the first wife of Rev. W. King of Waco, Texas. Grandfather Blackburn had three brothers in Jefferson Co; Andrew, Thomas and John, and perhaps two in Kentucky. Catherine, Sarah, Cinderella, and Minerva were his daughters; John, Andrew, and Alex were his sons.

My great-grandfather McGirk, whose name was John, married Catherine Whittmore. My great-grandfather Blackburn's name was John. He married Jennette Mathews.

Grandfather Blackburn seemed to me as near a perfect model of a man as I ever had known in all the relations of life; cheerful and affable in the family and social life, earnest and devout in religion.

Edward Blackburn died Sept. 26, 1853. The chief features of his character were delineated in an obituary notice written by his kinsman, Rev. A. Blackburn and published in the Presbyterian Witness of which he was the editor.

This obituary or memorial can be found in my private record book containing my college compositions, orations, and with several other notices of my family & friends.

PARENTAL GRANDPARENTS:

My father was born of William and Nellie Caldwell, her maiden name was Moore. I knew her brother, David, of Greene Co., Tenn., whom I visited with my grandmother Caldwell, when I was quite small, perhaps in the Spring of 1841; also her sister married to Robinson Rankin, Temple and Brewer of Greene Co. My grandmother Moore's maiden name was Peggy Copeland.

My grandfather William Caldwell was born of John and Jennie Caldwell, whose maiden name was Kennedy or Cannedy and they were married as tradition has it, on board the ship that brought them to America, immediately after landing. She was Irish, and he Scotch-Irish.

Grandfather Caldwell had two sisters, Sallie never married; Polly married Clemmons. He had five brothers, Anthony, and Alexander lived and died members and ruling elders of New Market Church, Jefferson Co. Tenn., James and Samuel probably moved to Ky.

Grandfather Caldwell was also a ruling elder in the New Market Church. He has five sons; viz: James H. (my father), Samuel, David, Anthony and Alexander. All I think were elders in the Presbyterian Church. The youngest and last survivor, Wm. Alexander, died last year (1879) near Bristol, Tenn. He had two daughters who lived to be grown and have large families. Father's eldest, Jennie, married John Newman. The youngest, Isabella or Ibby, married Benj. A. Blackburn. They both survived their husbands at this date, 1880, I think.

All the Caldwells of the United States are said to be descended from the three brothers: James, Alexander and Oliver of Scotland, who about three or four hundred years ago obtained from the king a grant of land, on which was a famous well of deep cold water; hence the name Caldwell (originally Cauldwell, perhaps.)

My grandfather was a soldier in the war for the American Independence 1776-1782. When a mere child, I remember to have heard him relate incidents of a battle with the British. He was also frequently called out to drive back the Indians. Grandmother related to me how at one time when he was away she through the long night was left alone and for fear of the Indians she built a large bright fire, left the door open and concealed herself a short distance from the door to watch their coming, but the Indians did not come that night.

Grandfather Caldwell was the owner of a few slaves and was a very kind and indulgent master. After his death the slaves were not allowed to be sold to strangers or to any one out of the Family. Even though the Presbyterian minister, Rev. W. Minnis, was not allowed to bid at the sale, though he wished to purchase one of them. My father would not own any of them.

MY FATHER

James Harvey Caldwell, was a laborious farmer, his education was adequate to his business. A very quiet, different man and of few words on any subject, though his thoughts were always clear and pointed. He occupied no political or official position. He served the church in the capacity of ruling elder at the New Market Pres. Church; attending the meetings of his Presbytery and Synod very frequently, and leading the congregation in prayer and praise, for he was counted a good leader in sacred music. The hymn book was always a companion of the family bible that lay on the stand and were used in morning and evening worship in our home.

My father was born May 2, 1800 and died June 27, 1850

MY MOTHER

Catherine, daughter of Edward and Peggy or Margaret Blackburn, was born Aug. 26, 1805 and died Feb. 26, 1849. Father and mother were married Feb. 13, 1823. She was a meek, patient, and quiet mother. She and father, it seemed, were made for each other, and to my mind had never been other than what I saw and knew them. Her life and soul seemed given to the love and care of her children, that they should know and do no evil, and grow up in the way of godliness and usefulness. Both parents were indulgent and encouraged mirth and sport with each other and other children when present, so that the house was often given up to childish romp in such games as hide-and-seek, blind-fold brily bright, etc. Then father and mother would claim possession, and we children would come to order and keep it too. They could command as well as indulge.

I, William Edward Caldwell, was born Sept. 13, 1824 in Jefferson Co., Tenn., on a small stream known as Lost Creek, two miles from New Market, on the road leading to Dandridge, the county seat, about eight miles from that place.

BROTHERS AND SISTER -

were as follows in the order of their ages, viz;

Margaret Ellen born March 19, 1826

Mary and Martha, twins, born Dec. 13, 1828 (Mary died Oct 4, 1847; Martha died May, 25, 1818 sic.

Albert Harden born Jan 30, 1831; died June 15, 1832

Gideon Blackburn born May 10, 1833

Isaac Nelson born March 4, 1836; died May 16, 1867

Oliver Benjamin, born Oct 15, 1838

Rufus Andrew born, Feb. 14, 1841; died Nov. 6, 1873.

"In the year 1857 I was commissioned again by Kingston Presbytery to represent it at the General Assembly at Cleveland, Ohio. That was a stormy session, in which the Assembly divided on the slavery question. For a number of years the northern wing of the church insisted on the doctrine that slave holding was a "sin per se", i.e. a man could not be an owner of slaves and at the same time a fit communicant in the church; that he must put away slave holding with all other sins before he could be a worthy of church fellowship with Northern Christians. The Southern members of the General Assembly felt that for the sake of peace and to be free from the sharp and perpetual censures of their Northern brethren that they ought to separate and they did so. The Southernns signed a paper and withdrew in a body."

"Great(*) grandmother Caldwell married William Caldwell Sept. 1, 1791. He came just before the Rev. War from Virginia, camped at the spring where W. A. Henry lives. He married Nellie Moore of Greene County, Tenn., about 1793.

Their children were:

Peggy M. Caldwell, born Jan. 28, 1794

Jane K Caldwell, b. 1796, m. June 18th ____ to John Newman, son of Aaron.

Anthony Caldwell, b. 1798, m. Feb. 20, 1826; to Polly Berry McSpadden

James Harvey Caldwell, b. 1800, m. Feb. 13, 1823 Catherine Blackburn

David Caldwell, b. 1802, m. in 1832 to Mary Blackburn, dau. of Andrew Blackburn

Samuel Caldwell, born 1804, in 1830 m. Sarah, dau of Andrew Blackburn

Isabelle Moore Caldwell, born 1806, on Feb. 21, 1827 married Benj. A. Blackburn.

Eleanor Caldwell, born 1808

William Caldwell, born 1812, in 1833 m. Maria Blackburn, dau of John Blackburn.

*He doubtless means his grandmother, not his great grandmother. He seems to have two dates of their marriage.

NANCY BLACKBURN (1785-1851)

NANCY GLORIAN BLACKBURN was the fourth daughter and the twelfth child of John and Janet Blackburn. She was born April 7, 1785, the year following the probable arrival of the Blackburn Family on Long Creek in Jefferson County. She died at her home southeast of Summerville, Macoupin County, Illinois, Sept. 26, 1851, and was buried in the cemetery northeast of the present location of the "Blackburn Bridge" on present Route #111. On June 21, 1804 she married John Carson, a teacher of subscription schools and at times surveyor and farmer, at Dandridge, Tenn. They were the parents of nine children:

Jane M. Carson (1805-1886) m. 1st Thos S. Blair, 2/21/1821 in Franklin, Tenn. At the semi-centennial celebration of the Spring Cove Pres. Church, on June 14, 1884, held in Summerville, Macoupin Co., Ill., in an address on the History of the Sunday School, N. Challacombe, the writer's father, said, "In the year 1844 Thos S. Blair and family moved into the neighborhood and his wife, Jane M. Blair, or "Aunt Jane" as she was familiarly called, took the lead in all S.S. work. She was perhaps one of the most efficient and faithful teachers that this S.S. ever had." Thos S. Blair died of the cholera Aug. 18, 1849, aged 52 years. In 1851 Aunt Jane married John Cramer, a widower of Carlinville, Ill. She died in 1886 and was buried in Rural Cemetery about 6 miles east of Carlinville, Ill.

Jane & Thos Blair were the parents of:

- (David Ferguson Blair, born about 1824; married Nancy Grizelle Blackburn, his cousin, dau. of Wm. Blackburn (1772-1856) of Franklin, Tenn. about 1847.
- (we have no data on their children; we understand that they moved to Kansas.
- (Nancy Blair, born about 1826, married Richard Baker and lived near Nilwood, Ill.
- (there were three or four Baker boys who were mixed up in a murder charge.

William Harvey Carson (1806-1883) married Mary ("Polly") Goff (1808-1880) in Franklin, Tenn., on Sept 11, 1828. He was made one of the ruling elders of the Spring Cove Pres. Church at its organization on June 14, 1834. This office he held until his death. He and a number of his immediate relatives arrived in Illinois late in October 1833; he took up land from the Government east of Summerville in Nov. 1833 and lived there the rest of his days. He followed farming but also was financially interested in a store in the village of Summerville for a time. The writer also remembers distinctly that he owned a horse-power and thresher outfit and in the seventies threshed grain for his neighbors. Some day to stand on the central platform of a horse-power and crack the whip over six or eight horses seemed to that small boy to be the acme of all ambition. Grandfather Carson left Tenn. because of his opposition to slavery and "walked the floor" in agitation when the news came of the killing of the Rev. Elijah Lovejoy at Alton in 1837. He was a strict observer of the Sabbath, as the writer has occasion to recall, when as a small boy our family went to grandfather's home for Sunday dinner after the morning services, and young Wesley thought it would be great fun to turn the old horse-power, but the noise soon brought out the grandfather who sternly said: "Must not do that. This is Sunday." Sport of any kind or reading of any book or paper except of a strictly religious nature was positively forbidden. How times have changed. "Uncle Harvey" and "Aunt Polly" as they were known among their neighbors lived to what was thought to be a good old age; highly respected, industrious and active in all good things; They are buried in the Summerville Cemetery. Six children were born to them: Nancy, Thomas, Edith, Gideon, Margaret and Asenath.

ELIZABETH HENDERSON CARSON, 4th child of John and Nancy Carson, was born in eastern Tenn., Sept 27, 1811; died at the home of her daughter, Emma Pentzer, in Lincoln, Neb., and buried in the garden, since she hoped to be brought to Summerville or Plainview for her final resting place. Aunt Lizzie Brown was full of fun and wit; always ready for a joke. When she was about 80 yrs of age she lived for three or four years at the writer's home. She often talked of "Uncle Gid" (Dr. Gideon Blackburn) and the family; - we wish we had listened more attentively. She died in 1902 or 1903, being over 91 years of age. She married John J. Brown, Feb. 21, 1833; they came to Illinois in fall of 1833; her husband died of Cholera Aug 10, 1849

NANCY GLORIAN BLACKBURN CARSON

NANCY GLORIAN BLACKBURN, twelfth child of John & Janet Blackburn, was born April 7, 1785 in Jefferson County, Tenn.; she died in Summerville, Illinois, "Sept. 25, 1851 aged 66". She was married to JOHN CARSON in Dandridge, Tenn., June 21, 1804. Her husband conducted a "subscription school", did surveying and some farming. In 1812 they left Jefferson County and moved to Franklin, Tenn., Williamson County; whither Dr. Gideon Blackburn and his family had moved the previous year. Their church letter was received at the Franklin Presbyterian Church, July 12, 1812. John and Nancy (Blackburn) Carson were the parents of nine children. Of these we have spoken at length elsewhere in this narrative. "John Carson died Jan. 28, 1826, age 50". He was doubtless buried in the cemetery of the Franklin Presbyterian Church. A diligent search in 1935 by the writer failed to discover any stone to his memory. In this cemetery as in many other old cemeteries in Tenn., there were many native stones set up to mark the location of graves but bore no discernable engraving. In his will John Carson left all his property to his wife and named her as executrix. For some reason she did not choose to serve. Her renunciation is signed by "her mark". That she could read and write we have several proofs. In the first place she married a school-teacher; she received letters from her folks in Tenn., after her arrival in Illinois, which are still in the hands of her great grandson, Gerald Carson; she also received a book of sermons endorsed as follows "Widow Carson will please accept these writings as a testimony of the sincere and unfeigned respect of her sincere and affectionate friend, Robert Henderson - the friend of her childhood, the friend of her youth and riper years". Dr. Harlan Carson (1845-1932) a grandson, told the writer that he learned the alphabet at his grandmother's knee. Why she made her mark on this occasion remains a mystery. On Oct 1, 1833 church letters were granted by the Franklin Presbyterian Church to "Nancy Carson, M. Grizelle Carson, James Carson, Wm. H. Carson, Mary Carson, John B. Carson, Elizabeth Carson, John Brown, Elizabeth Brown". That was the approximate date of their departure from Tennessee for Illinois. They came by wagon and the old dutch oven and other articles they used enroute are still in the possession of the writer. They arrived in Chesterfield Township, Macoupin County about the 1st of November. Grandfather, W. H. Carson entered the NE¹/₄ of section 32-9-9 west of 3rd P.M. on the 13th of November, 1833. His home stood about one-half mile SE of the present village of Summerville. His mother and four unmarried children lived in a log cabin about 400 ft south of grandfather's residence. Uncle John B. Carson entered land in section 28, about one mile north of grandfather's place, and aunt Lizzie Brown and her husband lived west of Uncle John according to our information. We understand that aunt Jane Blair and her family did not come to Illinois until 1844. Cholera broke out in the neighborhood in August 1849. Uncle John Brown and uncle Thos. Blair died within a week of each other. My father waited upon them in their last illness. It was prophesied that father would also take the cholera, but he escaped the malady. Grandfather Carson had a light attack but recovered. Because of his recklessness and heedlessness to danger, great grandmother Carson said of father: "Nicholas will die with his boots on". In 1896 he did die with his "boots on", but not from recklessness but from a heart attack. Nancy Carson and her two sons-in law were buried in the NE corner of the SE¹/₄ of sec. 21-9-9, where a graveyard had been started near the second location of the Spring Cove Presbyterian Church. No stone marked her grave that the writer ever saw or heard of.

NANCY GLORIAN CARSON CHALLACOLBE

NANCY GLORIAN CARSON was the eldest child of William Harvey Carson and Polly Goff, and a granddaughter of Nancy Blackburn Carson. She was born in Franklin, Tenn., on Aug. 26, 1829, and died at her home on "Locust Hill" on April 6, 1920. On Mch 22, 1847, she married Nicholas Challacombe, a native of Devonshire, England, who had come to America in 1833. They started housekeeping in a log cabin on "Locust Hill Farm" which her husband had acquired from the heirs of Dr. Gideon Blackburn in February, 1845. There she spent 75 years, living to see the automobile replace the ox-cart, the reaper the heavy cradle, and a telephone in the home and airplanes flying overhead. She was wont to tell with zest the experiences of the pioneer days in Chesterfield Township, when the wolves broke the silence of the night with their howling, and a sight of an occasional deer or bear was not an uncommon sight, and how the loss by fire of a log-cabin brought about her romance. It seems that father Challacombe had written a letter to Jane Blackburn, a granddaughter of Dr. Blackburn, proposing marriage, but before opportunity came to send the letter on its mission, the cabin took fire one November night and father and his sister who was keeping house for him had only time to get out with few of their personal belongings, and the proposal went up in smoke. While he was rebuilding he had the misfortune to fall off the roof and sprain an ankle. During his convalescence the neighbors took him in and in the round of visits he spent a time at the home of Harvey Carson, and then and there he fell in love with "a small black-eyed girl" (as Aunt Bell described her in a letter to her aunt in England). The romance seemed to grow rapidly, and was brought to a happy climax when Nicholas by letter told Nancy to read I John IV:7; and Nancy sent back word to look up II Samuel XII:7. Among mother's papers I found this ACROSTIC, which some of her grandchildren will find interesting:

"G ood and gracious is the Lord God on high;
L ove Him for in Him you can live and never die.
O f all the ways and means that unto you are given,
R eligion and His Holy Word is the way to heaven.
I n Him you live, move and have your being here below,
A nd through His Son He doth every good gift bestow.
N o earthly power can take from thee His gifts away,
N or lead thee from His paths astray.

C urb thy evil passions and unto thee shall be given
A ll honour and glory and life everlasting in heaven.
R emember thy Creator in the days of thy youth
S erve the Lord always abounding in His love and truth
O shou'dst thou forget to love Him, my fair friend,
N one would then intercede for thee in thy latter end".

Nicholas Challacombe,
Spring Cove, Nov. 21, 1846.

Father Challacombe was an austere man, silent in the family circle, but surprisingly voluble when company came. Mother always addressed him as "Mr. Challacombe", and spoke of him to us as "your pa". He called mother by her nick-name "Dode"; he was generous to his children, thoughtful of his neighbors and always doing some helpful act for those in distress from illness, death or financial difficulties. In politics he first supported the Whig Party, then joined the Republican Party at its inception and for years was a staunch supporter of that party, but when the Republican Party refused to take a stand against Intemperance, he joined the Prohibition Party. He was baptised in the West Down Episcopal Church in Devonshire, England, but when he came to Chesterfield Township he threw his lot in with his wife's church and became, without question, the most active member of the Spring Cove Presbyterian Church in its entire history. Sunday morning, Sunday evening, midweek services always found him making the three-mile trip to the church, in rain or shine, cold or heat, through mud or over frozen roads with a regularity and promptness as punctual as the old Seth Thomas Clock on the family mantle-piece. The old family carriage, capable of seating nine grown persons comfortably, was always full and on time. In stature and weight he was a powerful man. He stood at least six feet and weighed 200 lbs and not an ounce of fat on his frame. When he was 70 yrs of age, and we were 21, he would pitch hay to us on the wagon in an amount and at a pace that was amazing. Mother, on the other hand, was small of stature but a bundle of energy and vitality. As we think back over the days when company came at unexpected times and added to her already large family, we cannot recall that she was ever perplexed or disturbed or at loss to provide for the hospitality of her guests or family. Relatives and friends came to "Locust Hill" and spent weeks but if they were ever a burden, we never heard a murmur from her. The long walnut table was drawn out to the limit and loaded, the spare-room was always ready and the welcome was ever cordial and sincere. Sister Dora, now in her 90th years, was recently speaking of the occasion when father came home with the news that Lincoln was shot, how grieved they were over his death, but to the fact that he met his death in a theatre they were irreconcilable. For their children and grandchildren they left an example for piety, service and faith, that has been a source of constant inspiration.

SPRING COVE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

It is fitting at this place to give a short sketch of this church, whose origin and continued existence has been so intimately tied up with the Blackburn and Carson families. Spring Cove Presbyterian Church was organized by Dr. Gideon Blackburn in his home June 14th, 1833 on the banks of the Macoupin Creek near a spring - hence its name. Dr. Blackburn visited this region in the Spring of 1833 and entered some 560 acres of land near this location. He purchased a cabin and "squatter rights" of a squatter near this spring and it was to this cabin, he brought his family late in October of that year (1833). A cabin was purchased of a neighbor and a third cabin was added to the two, so that the three cabins stood end to end under one continuous roof with an open space between two adjacent cabins. This description the writer had from his Mother who remembered distinctly the location and construction of the cabins. This location had been a favorite camping ground for the Indians. Much Indian pottery and flint chips of partially prepared arrows were found there. The first log church building was erected about one-half mile north of Dr. Blackburn's cabins, on the west bank of the Macoupin Creek. At this point the creek makes a square turn from the east to the north. Here may be seen a large outcrop of limestone and about 200 feet west of this outcrop on the high bank was where the first church building stood. It was made by setting tall uprights in the ground for corner posts and to these were nailed the siding and finished with a clapboard roof. Of the twenty original members, eighteen were of Dr. Blackburn's immediate kin. We give herewith a list of their names, kinship, place of burial and year of death:

*These five were appointed elders. Within six weeks after the organization of the church, Elder James Tull died (Aug. 6, 1834) and "was the first person buried in the cemetery started about 200 ft southeast of the first church building". "Here also were buried several children of the Blackburn's, Carson's and Hamilton's; also the mother of Robert Bacon". The land on which this first church-building stood was entered by Dr. Blackburn, and in 1845 passed from the Blackburns to Nicholas Challacombe and has been in the possession of the Challacombe family to this date. About 1887 the writer and his father, Nicholas Challacombe, were repairing the fence near the location, and his attention was called to a post still standing, being one of the uprights of the old church, and also to the sunken graves that marked the graveyard. No stones were in this old graveyard, and today no marker of any kind fixes the location of either the church or the graveyard. However the above description with regard to the bend in the creek and the outcrop of limestone ought to approximately establish the location for any one interested in the matter.

The following year (1835) or in 1836, the crude church building was abandoned and a new and more modern structure was erected on a three-acre tract of land deeded to the Trustees of the Spring Cove Presbyterian Church by Dr. Blackburn. This tract was 24 rods north-and-south by 20 rods east-and-west located in the northeast corner of the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 21-9-9, and about one mile southeast of the location of the first church-building. The new building stood on the north line of this tract and faced the public road on the north. A cemetery was started in the southeast corner of this three-acre tract. Here were buried many of the Blackburn-Carson connection and other residents of the vicinity. Of the following we have fairly trustworthy information of their interment in this cemetery: to wit: John J. Brown, Aug 10, 1849; Thos. S. Blair, Aug 18, 1849; Nancy B. Carson, 1851; Mary A. Carson, 1856; Mrs. Eliza Gulick Carson, wife of James M. Carson, and two infant daughters of James and Eliza Carson, both named "Medora J. Carson"; a Miss Mary (?) Gilmore; two or three children of a Dr. Thos Brown; also members of the Dowland Family. Originally a few stones marked several of the graves, but within the past fifteen years these stones were taken up and "laid against the east fence", and the ground taken into the adjacent field. Diligent search by the writer has failed however to bring these stones to light. We were on the tract in the summer of 1941 and thought we could still detect several sunken graves.

About 1848 eight members of the Church withdrew and formed the Congregational Church at Chesterfield, Ill. This left the house of worship across the creek and at one side of the parish. Therefore, that year or the year following the building was taken down in sections and moved to Summerville. The congregations continued to use the cemetery for several years after the church-building was moved to its new location. When a cemetery was started in the yard of the Baptist Church at Summerville, they ceased to use what we have called "the Blackburn Bridge Cemetery" - so called because the splendid bridge over the Macoupin Creek, dedicated in 1931 and named the "Blackburn Bridge" is located about one-half mile southwest of the three-acre tract mentioned above. In fact, the state highway #111 passes diagonally across the said three-acre tract, so that the former location of the church lies to the west of the highway and the cemetery on the east side at the top of the hill. After the cemetery at Summerville came into use, little attention was given to the old cemetery.

The writer remembers making at least one trip with his father to the cemetery to repair the fence and cut the brush. In 1871 the Trustees of the Church sold all of the three-acre tract to George Palmer, except a "plat 5 rods north-and-south by 4 rods east-and-west in the southeast corner of the three acre-tract". This took in all the graves. The title to this cemetery still rests in the Trustees of the Spring Cove Presbyterian Church (name recently changed by the Presbytery to "the Summerville Presbyterian Church"). We had hoped to get the County to take steps to mark off and preserve this old graveyard, but it seems that few are interested in the matter. The description of the location given above will enable posterity to locate it if there be any who may desire to do so.

The old church building continued to serve as a place of worship for fully 75 years. Time making it necessary to repair the building and desiring a larger and more modern church building, the Congregation purchased the abandoned building of the Congregationalists at Kemper, Ill., and re-erected it at Summerville, on the site of the old church. But it will never seem like home to us. The old church with its dignified, plain, austere outlines, the walnut pulpit that extended across the entire platform, the old wooden pews with straight backs and seats, the large heating stoves on either side with benches facing the heat, the walnut communion table beneath the pulpit; the large pewter cantor from which the wine was poured on communion days, the large pewter goblits that were passed from person to person, the pew on the east side where grandfather Carson sat and solemnly looked up at the preacher, the pew on the west side where father Challacombe sat and sometimes nodded, the short pew in the center of the church barricaded by a post where mother Challacombe herded the youngest member of her flock, the fervent prayers of Deacon Wilton in his Welsh accent, the shrill soprano of Mrs. Hill, as she sought to drown out the younger set, the solemn sermons by such men as Dr. A. T. Norton, blind Dr. David Diamond, Dr. E. L. Hurd, President of Blackburn University, and Rev. W. R. Adams, to whom we are indebted for our middle name - - what potent pleasant memories. Would that we could turn back the hands of time once more to those days. Occasionally we visit the church but the places and faces are strange, the seats in semi-circle face the speaker, the pulpit is of modern type - everything and everybody seem unfamiliar - scarcely a face of fifty years ago is present - all have gone to join that host of innumerable throng in that bourne from which no traveller ever returns.

The Blackburns in America

The Blackburn family has a long, long line of able, honest, God-fearing men and women. A record of which to be proud. A lineage of which to speak with pride. Of early pioneers who were the equal of the Puritans in the practice of their faith. To whom Sabbath observance was a strict ritual, the theatre an institution of the Devil, and the dance his chief lure to destruction. Dr. Blackburn was often solicited to sit for a portrait, but he constantly refused, as he deemed such a course against the Second Commandment, and only by deceit was a portrait finally secured and preserved to us of his keen and inspiring face. Over the deceit practiced on him he felt very bitter but afterwards fully forgave the betrayers of his trust.

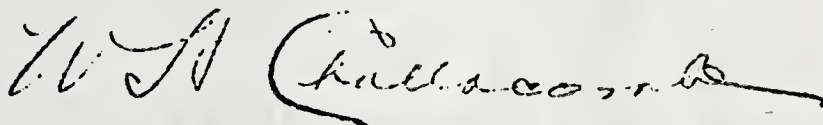

The number of preachers and teachers in the Blackburn Family has been legion. The great majority of them have been members of the Presbyterian Church and the record of every generation since Benjamin, the patriarch, has been replete with his sons and grandsons down to the tenth generation who have served the Church as elders, preachers and teachers. They have always stood for law and order, justice and righteousness, and the Kingdom of God, which some of them called the Presbyterian Church.

FINIS

This Blackburn saga must come to a close. To you who wish for more definite information on certain lines, we bequeath the pleasure of search and discovery. Concerning the ancestry of Benjamin Blackburn, when and why they left Ulster, Ireland; on what ship they sailed, at what port they landed, where they first settled, at what exact date they came to Winchester, Va., who was Benjamin's father, and how many brothers and sisters came over - all this might be found, if one knew where to look.

We have made one or two attempts to write this paragraph and express our thanks and indebtedness to the Blackburn kin who have helped us assemble this lineage, but in order not to omit anyone to whom credit was due, the list began to look like a telephone directory, and we have decided that the wisest thing was not to try to enumerate those to whom we owe so much, but to merely add that we are indebted more than we can find words to express, and hope that the gratitude of many of the Blackburn kin, who find pleasure in this narrative may be their adequate reward.

That there are many errors herein, we are well aware. For them we ask your kind indulgence. If you feel disposed to do so, you might drop us a line calling attention to errors. We are sorry that we could not connect with anyone of the family of Benjamin, Jr (1738-1834) and learn something of the family records in the "Great Bible". There must be some of that family in Alabama. Of the lines of the two daughters of Benjamin, Elizabeth Blackburn Bays, and Nancy Blackburn Weir, we made no attempt to trace. We find that of the Revolutionary veteran, John Blackburn (1740-1808), we have listed 12 children, 74 gr-ch, 212 gt-gr-ch, 417 gt-gt-gr-ch, 197 gt-gt-gt-gr ch, 43 gt-gt-gt-gt-gr ch, and 1 gt-gt-gt-gt-gt-gr-child - total 1421, and probably that is not more than 70% of all John Blackburn's descendants.

In June 1942, when I "closed the book" at the 120th page, I was well aware that I should add an INDEX. But the thought of the work involved seemed too great a task to undertake and would delay for some time the privilege of placing this book in the hands of my many friends. However the past twelve months has convinced me that without an index the book is but half complete, and since the call for the book had exhausted the supply that I ran off in June 1942, I am running off forty more copies and adding a few notes that have come to my attention in the past year, and also adding an index and several cuts, which I hope will lend much interest to the material herein.

I am indebted to Mrs. Minna Hyman of Hyman, Texas, for the most of the notes that follow. She has done extensive research work on her ALBROSE BLACKBURN line as well as on the BENJAMIN BLACKBURN FAMILY. To me she has committed her "precious Blackburn file" and the task of compiling the same into a book similar to the BENJAMIN BLACKBURN FAMILY. The task seems a large one as it now faces me. I cannot say at the present writing whether I can accomplish it or not.

NOTES

(1) Under the will of Gen. Samuel Blackburn, who died March 2, 1835, each of 46 nephews and nieces then living received a legacy of $326.08.

(2) The executor of the estate of Gen Saml Blackburn reported that "All of the testator's slaves with the exception of two accepted their freedom upon the prescribed condition of emigrating to Liberia."

(3) Nancy Blackburn, sister of Gen. Samuel Blackburn married John Weir, a veteran of the Rev. War. We note that the name is spelled Weir in the settlement of the Samuel Blackburn Estate, but in later years is spelled "Wear" and "Weare" by the children of John and Nancy.

(4) Augusta Co., Va., May 8, 1839 - Benj Crawford testified that "he saw Thomas Blackburn, son of Archibald, four or five years ago in the State of Alabama. Relatives saw Thos. last fall and he was in good health".

(5) District of Columbia: to wit: This day Wm. D. Seaton made oath before me a J.P. that the annexed order has been inserted in the National Intelligence published in the City of Washington, once a week for eight successive weeks commencing the 8th of January 1839---then follows a list of the supposed heirs of Gen. Samuel Blackburn.

(6) On page 40 "Molloy" should be "Malloy" according to Mrs. Hyman's notes.

(7) Franklin, Tenn., June 11, 1835 - Benj. Weare in letter states "eight of our family alive as far as I know - Sally and Jean dead. ---Uncle John's family I know little about, except that George(Blackburn) lives in Alabama. ---I have six handsome daus. alive and one died when small - Marianne, Salina, Nancy, Une (sic), Sarah, & Eliza Jane. _____ is married; the rest is yet with me. Two sons alive one died young. John C. and Wm. M. Calvin, travelling preacher (or preachers) in Alabama 3 years."

(9) Thos Snoddy writes from Snoddyville, Tenn., Jefferson Co., May 22, 1839 - "My wife, Jane Snoddy, formerly Jane Blackburn, dau of John Blackburn, bro. of Gen. Samuel Blackburn, departed this life Sept. 11, 1834 - my wife's brothers, Andres, John, Edward & James and their sister May Moyers all live in this Co."

(10) On Aug. 12, 1839, John Meek and his wife, Rachel Blackburn Meek, dau of Robert Blackburn sold all their right to the remainder of the estate of Gen. Saml Blackburn to John L. D. Blackburn for $225.00. (John L. D. Blackburn was their nephew, a son of Edward Rose Blackburn, see pp 40.)

(11) Jane Blackburn, dau of John & Janet M. Blackburn, born June 3, 1780; md. Sept. 6, 1804 to Thos Snoddy, died Sept. 11, 1834. (This Snoddy died before 1846.) Their children were: Edward B. Snoddy; Carey Snoddy; Grizelle Snoddy, Margaret Snoddy.

(13) Guernsey Co. Ohio. - - Wm Reynolds testifies - "have known since infancy Thos Bay & Eliz. his wife & their children: Benj., Robert, William, Thos., Eliza, Sam, John, James, & Arch, & that the most of them lived in Washington Co, Pa.(?) until 1812 when they removed to Guernsey Co., Ohio, to which the undersigned had settled about 1810 2 years before. About 1817 Samuel(Blackburn) visited his sister's home; he left articles of friendship and remembrances - had not seen her for 40 yrs.

Wm Reynolds.

(14) Letter of Beulah Leone Blackburn Hargett, of #216 N. Pecan St., Arlington, Texas. Nove. 2, 1937 to Mrs. Hyman: "Archibald Alexander Blackburn; born near Knoxville, Tenn., 1819 - his father had 7 girls and 5 boys - I can't recall all the names, my father, James, William, John, Mathes - girls, Lizzie, Lucinda, Louisa, Isabel, Nancy, Sarah, I think. My father married Jane Elizabeth Northrop of Alabama, Chambers Co., in 1851. They came to Smith Co., Texas near Tyler, in 1854; then to Wood Co. where he bought 640 acres around where the town of Hawkins lies. He had 5 children to be grown - Emma, John, Minnie, Edward & Beulah (myself) - I was the youngest - there were 8 born - 3 died in infancy. Ed is the one in Pearsal. He and I are the only ones living. I am 65; Ed is 71. I do not know the given name of his father (she apparently means her father's father) but I know my aunt said he was one of 12 brothers. I remember 2 names, Sam & John - they were old bachelors and Sam left quite an estate to his 45 nephews & nieces - my aunt & father never rec a bit - it was not justly divided - my aunt Nancy in Jeroldstown, Tenn. rec hers - She is dead but she did have a son in Greenville, Tenn. His name is Chas. Jerolds. His father was a Dr. - - I know Gov. Joe Blackburn of Ky was a cousin of my father - - I have an own hiece 5 yrs younger than I - she is living 18 miles on Poteet road from San Antonio - - her name is Mrs. Bessie Wylie Moss. She was my bro John's oldest chil

(15) Letter from John Chalmers Jeralds, Greenville, Tenn., 11/8/37 - my mother was a Blackburn - have forgotten her father's name - my mother's parents died when she was small so she was taken by her uncle (E. Mathes) & lived with him till she married in about 1855 - my mother spoke of two brothers, John & Archy.

(16) Remarks on items 14 & 15 above. Archibald Alexander Blackburn was evidently the son of Benj. Blackburn (son of Archibald Blackburn 1751-1823) & Rachel Mathes, dau of Alexander Mathes. (See pages 43 & 44). The quotation on pp 44 - "Archibald died at home" which implies that he died in his father's home, is evidently a mistake. Also Mrs. Hargett's statement about the 12 brothers and the two old bachelors is not borne out by evidence elsewhere in this book. We note again the tradition cropping up that Gov. Joe Blackburn and his family in Ky were related to the Benj. Blackburn family. Since we have definitely traced the Ky Blackburns back to 1740 to Edward & Ann Blackburn of Middlesex Co., Va., and our Benjamin Blackburn line back to 1753 in Frederick Co., near Winchester, Va., the relationship would have to appear in their fathers. (see pp 5 & 27). According to Mrs. Hargett, Benj. & Rachel Blackburn were the parents of 12 children; you will note that on pp 44 we had only the names of 10.

(17) Error on page*65 - - Sally and Mary Blackburn, sisters, married brothers, namely, Samuel and David Caldwell, not Campbell. Harriet Campbell is wife of their brother Alexander, I think, is correct.

(18) Roy H. Odell (page 106) died March 25, 1943, aged 65 yrs 3 mo. He was a man of sterling qualities, prominent in County Farm Organizations, active in his church & Sunday School, and a very successful farmer and stock raiser. His helpful guidance and efficient help will be sorely missed by his wife, children & church. In the summer of 1940 he accompanied the writer in a trip down thru Virginia & Tenn and was present at the Blackburn Family Reunion at Dandridge.

(19) Linda Maude Thayer, first child of Kathleen (Butler) Thayer (pp 106 and her husband, Larry Thayer was born April 2, 1943.

W. A. Challacombe, May 1943

5. William Augustine Blackburn, b. 1870; d. 8-11-93, Columbia, Tenn.

MARY HANNAH BLACKBURN, (probably a sister of Wm Alfred Blackburn) married Ambrose Cameron about 1800; died about 1814. Ambrose Cameron died about the same date, leaving six small children. Tradition has it that Wm. Alfred Blackburn took the youngest son, Austin Cameron, back home to Mo. with him and that Austin "was raised by his uncle, Wm. Jasper Blackburn". (However we think Hannah could not have been a daughter of Wm. Lewis Blackburn settled in Forsythe Co., Ga., and lived about 10 miles apart.

1. Robert Cameron, b. 1802, m. 1st Hinton; 2nd Hinton. Robert's descendants have his Bible.
2. William Alfred Cameron, b. 1804, m. Eliza Dacus of Newton Co., Ga.
(Elizabeth Cameron, m. W. W. Whitesides - she died 1919; she remembered (that her mother said they were descendants of Pocahontas.
((Cooper Whitesides
((Kenneth Whitesides, "m. a Newton Co. girl Oct. 14, 1915".
(((Has a daughter living in Etoriah, Tenn.
3. Lucinda Cameron, also has Pocahontas tradition, m. Elijah Davis, Forsythe
4. Ashley Cameron went to Mo. when a young man; raised a family. (Co. Ga.
5. Austin Cameron went to Bolivar, Polk Co., Mo. to live with his uncle William Blackburn.
6. Elizabeth Cameron, told Pocahontas tradition, m. Wm Shipley; leaves many descendants.

ANDREW BLACKBURN, son of William Blackburn & Amy Samples, pp 66; m. Mary Ann Meacham not Mitchell as given on pp 66. Mary Ann Meacham Blackburn died in 1879; in her will she mentions her dau. Martha Ann Locke; her grandchildren, W. H. Locke, J. M. Locke, Jesse N. Locke, Mary Ann Robinson, Mary Ann Blackburn, and "Willie" H. Blackburn. (The last two probably daughters of Wm. G. Blackburn.)

You will note that the date of birth of Wm. Alfred is given as 1788; on pp 18, 1788 is given as the date of birth of his twin brothers. We cannot explain the discrepancy.
